"Hard of Hearing."

Mrs. J. M. Backus, 58, of 805 White street, S. W., was almost instantly killed in front of her home early Tuesday night when she was struck by a speeding auto, said to have been operated by C. C. Ogle, 18, of 697 Julian street, N. W. Ogle is being held without bond in connection with the fatality.

Mrs. Backus, returning from a visit to a neighbor, was hurled to the ground and badly mangled by the impact. Rushed to Grady hospital in a private ambulance of Harry G. Poole, Mrs. Backus was found to be beyond human aid.

Her right arm and both legs were broken and she sustained severe internal injuries, as well as numerous cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Backus was the mother of Jim Backus, an attaché in the office of the Fulton county tax receiver, and was widely known in Atlanta.

Motorcycle Officers W. T. Milam and G. W. Richardson arrested Ogle, alleged driver of the car, and he is being held without bond on a charge of suspicion pending filing of formal charges.

According to information given hospital attaches by Mrs. Jewell Fields, of 806 White street, whom Mrs. Backus had been visiting and an eye-witness of the tragedy, the automobile was going west on White street at a rapid rate of speed. Police were also told that the driver of the automobile failed to blow his horn.

At police station Ogle denied having driven the car faster than 20 miles an hour. He told police that he understood that Mrs. Backus was hard of hearing, which probably accounted for her not having heard his car.

The body of Mrs. Backus was removed to the Harry G. Poole funeral parlors, pending funeral arrangements, which have not been completed.

Mrs. Backus' only survivor is her son, Jim Backus, who was out of the city at the time of the accident. He was immediately notified of his mother's death and funeral arrangements will await his return.

'Cotton Futures' Measure Passes Senate by 1 Vote

Bitter Battle Precedes
Approval of Bill To Lift
Ban on Future Deliveries.

WILHOIT GAS TAX WINS APPROVAL

House Votes Change in Auto System, To Set
Prices of License Tags
by Weight.

After a bitter parliamentary battle the senate Tuesday afternoon passed a bill which permits the custom of contracting sales of cotton for future delivery, the vote being a tie at 25 to 25, which President Ed Dykes, of the senate, broke by voting in favor of the measure. The bill makes it effective only after a "delivery point" is established in Georgia similar to one now being used at Dallas, Texas.

In the house the chief feature of the afternoon session was the passage by a vote of 105 to 45 of a bill providing for a new system of fixing prices for automobile license tags. The new system is based on the weight of the automobiles instead of on their horsepower, as at present. Several amendments to the bill, one of which placed the sale of automobile licenses in the hands of the ordinaries of the respective counties, were defeated when the committee substitute for the regular bill was adopted.

Under the new system of fixing automobile licenses the minimum license for a passenger car would be $11.25 as at present. Each hundred weight would be assessed 50 cents, the gross weight of passenger cars to be used in calculating the fee. The prices of trucks would be slightly higher than under the present system, and no vehicle weighing more than 22,000 when loaded would be permitted to be operated on the highways.

The bill provides for license tags on both front and rear of cars. Representative Hugh Peterson, in explaining the bill, declared that the price of tags for smaller cars would remain the same under the new system, but said makers of heavier cars are changing their motors so that they fall within the price of the smaller cars, and that the new system would meet this situation.

Another feature of the house session Tuesday was the defeat of a motion to reconsider its action Monday in defeating the Miller-Bloch sales tax bill. By defeating the motion to reconsider the sales tax plan for Georgia is virtually dead as far as the present session is concerned.

One of the outstanding features of the senate session was the passage of the Wilhoit gasoline tax bill. This bill places the gasoline tax at 4 cents a gallon and repeals the 1-2-cent inspection fee. A tax of 1 cent a gallon was placed on kerosene oil.

HANSELL, BAXTER ARE EXONERATED OF MALFEASANCE

Committee Named To Probe Charges Made by
J. J. Barnes Completely
Clears City Officials.

William A. Hansell, chief of construction, and Bruce J. Baxter, superintendent of the municipal garage, will be exonerated of charges of malfeasance filed against them Monday in city council, if that body adopts a recommendation to that effect made Tuesday afternoon by a special investigation committee.

J. J. Barnes, former inspector of weights and measures, complainant, declined to take the witness stand under oath and attempt to prove the charges contained in a formal petition filed with council.

In making its report, the committee cited the fact that Barnes failed to substantiate his complaints against the two officials, and issued a statement commending the construction department for its activities tending to reduce the cost of filling washouts. Mr. Baxter for giving without any charge, some 20 cubic yards of dirt to the city and Charles L. Chosewood for permitting the city to construct a

PROHIBITION AGENT SLAIN IN AMBUSH

Officer's Son and Friend
Are Also Victims of Attack in Mountains of West Virginia.

Logan, W. Va., August 16.—(P)—Three men, one a state prohibition officer, were killed and a fourth was wounded today when a camping party of ten was ambushed, apparently by mountain moonshiners, near Chancey, Logan county. Two men had been arrested tonight for questioning.

Police said they thought the moonshiners believed the members of the party to be spies masquerading as campers.

Ed Hensley, prohibition agent, his 15-year-old son, Don, and Ernest Marcum, were shot to death when the camp, along Island creek, was the target for rifle fire from the heavily wooded mountainsides close by. The wounded man was Howard Tomlin. All were residents of Hart's creek.

A posse of 40 men recruited when news of the slayings reached Logan, located the bodies of the three victims, rounded up the six survivors of the party who had scattered to seek shelter from the withering fire of their unseen assailants, and then arrested Arch Adkins and A. F. Roberts, of near Chancey. They were held for investigation. Visits by the posse to several homes in the neighborhood revealed that the men of the families all were absent. Three stills were found in Chancey hollow, one quite close to the scene of the ambush.

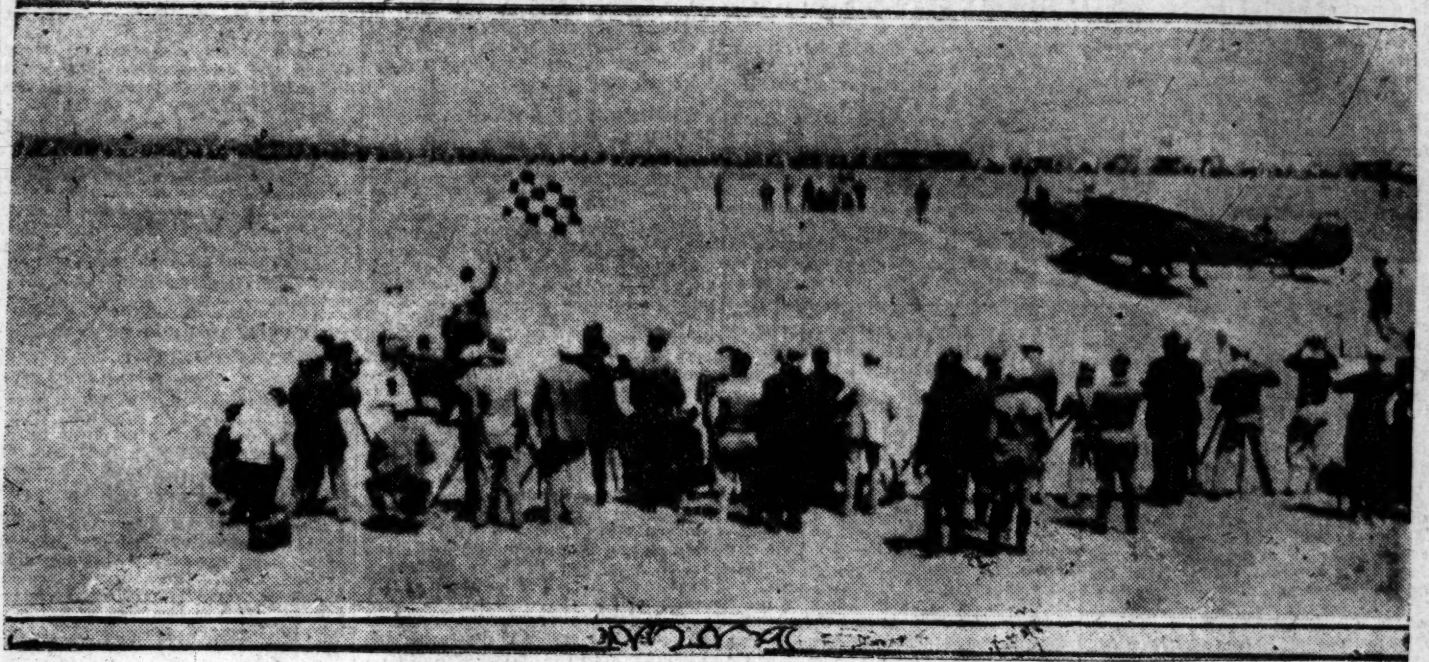

The first report of the slayings was brought to Logan by Dave Hensley, brother of the slain officer, who had made his way on foot from Chancey, 14 miles. A posse of state police, county officers and federal agents was dispatched to the scene, Dave Hensley acting as guide.

Find Survivors.

En route, the possemen, led by Sheriff Tennis Hatfield, picked up the five other survivors of the ambush. The three victims were found where they had fallen, their unidentified assailants apparently having fled immediately after the slayings. All three had been shot through the head.

Dave Hensley told police the party had been encamped along Island creek for two days but denied they were searching for stills. Yesterday, he said, several men visited the camp and warned the party they must leave before noon today. The warning went unheeded. It was a few minutes before noon that the attack was made.

on Gilmer Street.

Miss Frances Ford, of 53 Gilmer street, is in Grady hospital believed dying with a bullet wound in the abdomen, while Albert Chesrow, said to live at a downtown hotel, is held without bond on a charge of suspicion in connection with the shooting.

Patrolmen G. G. Caldwell and L. C. Jones, who discovered the couple on the front porch of the home, learned that Chesrow was attempting to drag Miss Ford down the front steps, probably to the street, where an ambulance would be summoned. A pistol was found beside the steps by the officers.

At the hospital Miss Ford stated that Chesrow had paid attention to her during the past but that they had broken up because of his jealousy. She also stated that he had threatened to kill her before "at least on one occasion he came to my home with a pistol in his hand for the purpose of killing me, and tonight he came to my home and while I was standing in the hallway before opening the door he shot me through the door," she said to hospital attaches.

Chesrow's hands were cut by the glass that he had to break in the door to reach the injured woman.

ENGINE TROUBLE POSTPONES FLIGHT OF CAPTAIN GILES

Selzfield, Mich., August 16.—Twenty minutes after taking off for San Francisco on the first leg of his 11,000-mile flight to Wellington, New Zealand, Captain Frederick A. Giles, English aviator, was forced to return because of motor trouble. Captain Giles took off at 7:40 p. m. and for 20 minutes flew over the field in diminishing circles, finally his ship was observed by spectators to be losing altitude. The motor sputtered and missed and immediately S. O. S. signals began to blink from the cockpit of the descending ship. A thin spray of gasoline flew behind him as Captain Giles began to empty his tanks. He succeeded in dumping off approximately half the 305 gallons with which he took off before landing. Captain Giles plans to take off again tomorrow.

25-CENT MINIMUM FOR COTTON FIXED

Farmers' Marketing Association Plans Holding for Good Price; Finance Committee To Be Named

Dallas, Texas, August 16.—(P)—A minimum price of 25 cents a pound, with option of raising it should the next government report warrant the raise, was fixed here today by the cotton conference called by the Farmers' Marketing Association of America. There were approximately 200 farmers and business men in attendance.

At the same time a committee was named to devise means of financing the holding of the 1927 crop until the minimum price may be attained. Adoption of the 25 cent minimum price recommendation was by unanimous vote, though it was suggested by some speakers that it might be necessary to raise the minimum to 30 cents or more by the time the next government crop report is issued in September.

The price recommendation report also urged that the farmers should borrow money in order to hold their cotton for this or even a higher price instead of dumping the commodity upon the market.

Another committee report, also unanimously adopted, provided for the creation of a financing committee.

There was a general tendency on the part of the speakers to oppose so far as any official action was concerned, any proposal for legislative relief. There was many declarations that the farmer, aided by the co-operation of the business man, must act for himself if he was to secure a fair return on his investment and labor as a cotton producer.

Former Governor G. W. Donaghey, of Arkansas, a speaker at the morning session, differed from this view in his declarations in favor of the McNary-Haugen bill. George B. Terrell, of Austin, state commissioner of agriculture, was as emphatic in his address in opposition to the measure which he declared would not accomplish what was expected of it.

Commissioner Terrell analyzed the McNary-Haugen bill in which he outlined its probable effect upon cotton states. He granted that the measure might have been intended as an honest effort to afford relief to the farmers of the country, but asserted that if enacted, it would not operate to that end.

Wednesday morning the meeting will be limited to members of the association, business sessions of which will be concluded with the elections of officers.

Revenue of $6,000,000 Claimed Under New Measure To Be Offered Legislature.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

What is generally conceded to be a sales tax and an income tax under other names, to be offered as amendments to the general tax bill, late Tuesday were given approval of the senate finance committee. The vote was 9 to 7. Should both measures be passed in both houses and become law, their proponents estimate they will produce about $6,000,000 annually in new revenue.

The income tax, in the new form, it was asserted, can be levied by legislative act, obviating the necessity for constitutional amendment encountered when it goes under its own name. It also may be passed, it was said, by bare majority vote of the legislative house. A constitutional amendment requires two-thirds vote.

In its new guise the income tax would be levied as a "business and vocational license privilege tax."

It would be applied by requiring the maker of a federal income tax return to make it in duplicate, one copy to go to the state, and pay 25 per cent of the amount due the federal government.

$12,500,000 in Federal Tax.

Nearly $12,500,000 in federal income tax was paid last year by Georgians, leading to the belief that about $2,750,000 would be produced by the "vocational license tax."

The sales tax, called by courtesy and occupation tax, would be one mill on retailers' purchases for resale, as has been proposed in most of the other sales tax measures offered in the present general assembly; but it would depart from the bills previously offered.

FLANDERS TELLS JURY OF LASHING

Editor Recounts How He

After Being Struck on Head and Flogged.

Spartan, Ga., August 16.—(P)—Positive identification of Raymond Lee as the man who struck him unconscious was made by Editor H. M. Flanders, who was the only witness called to the stand by the state today in the trial of Raymond Lee, charged with three others with being members of the hooded mob which flogged the editor near here the night of February 25. Following his testimony the state rested and the defense began its case with introduction of six witnesses who endeavored to establish an alibi for Lee.

The trial of Lee, who is indicted with Sheriff W. L. Thigpen, Henry McLendon and Joe Lee, son of Raymond Lee, was started late today. Most of the day was consumed in selection of the jury. Court was adjourned at 7 o'clock by Judge E. Schol Graham, of the Oconee circuit, who is presiding. Flanders was whipped by a hooded mob on the road between Spartan and Swainsboro. The flogging is alleged to have occurred because of his attack on the whisky interests in the county through the editorial columns of his paper.

Flanders Accuses Lee.

Solicitor Boyer asked Flanders if he could identify the man who struck him.

"I can," replied Editor Flanders. "Who is he?" asked Solicitor Boyer. "Raymond Lee," was the answer. "Where is he?" asked the state's attorney.

"There," answered the editor, pointing his finger at Lee, who was sitting with his attorneys in the front of the courtroom near the center.

"That is all," Solicitor Boyer said, and the state rested its case. The state immediately introduced witnesses who endeavored to establish an alibi for Lee, several of them stating

Three monoplanes and a biplane are somewhere between the mainland and Hawaii—racers in the $35,000 James D. Dole air derby opened at noon Tuesday to airmen winging their way from the American continent to the Island of Oahu.

Two of the planes, the Aloha and the Woolarac, were reported sighted by ships steaming along the great circle route between San Francisco and Hawaii. The other two planes, the Golden Eagle and the Miss Doran, had not been heard from by radio stations in San Francisco.

Last Check on Ships.

The latest check put the Woolarac 270 miles west of San Francisco at 4 p. m., Pacific time, and the Aloha 200 miles west at 2:50 p. m. The Woolarac is piloted by Art Goebel of Hollywood, Cal., and navigated by Lieut. Wm. Davis, naval air officer, of San Diego. The Aloha is piloted by Martin Jensen, Honolulu's only Dole entrant, and navigated by Paul Schuler, of San Francisco, a sea captain who spun a radio in lieu of his mariner's instruments.

The Golden Eagle, entered in the race by George Hearst, publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, carried a radio beacon set and instruments enabling communication with passing ships.

No Word From Jack Frost.

None of the vessels reporting on the planes up to 6:45 o'clock Tuesday night told of even seeing the yellow metal monoplane, and it was believed that Jack Frost, her pilot, had climbed above the high fog. Gordon Scott, of Los Angeles, was the Golden Eagle's navigator.

The Miss Doran, carrying the 22-year-old woman "flying school teacher" of Flint, Mich., as a passenger, piloted by John "Jack" Frost, and navigated by Lieut. Vilar R. Knope of the San Diego naval air station, was not equipped with radio, and started across the sea with the understanding that visible communication could be the only method of checking with ships en route.

SPECIAL COUNCIL MEETING LOOMS

A special session of city council at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon loomed Tuesday when it was learned that Mayor L. N. Ragsdale has taken under advisement a request for a called meeting to consider at least three important matters in connection with the city government.

Council probably will be asked to approve tentative plans for construction of the twin-viaducts which will span railroad tracks crossing Pryor street and Central avenue as one of the propositions to be included in the call.

A second matter would be acceptance of the recommendation of a special investigation committee of city council authorized to probe charges of malfeasance against William A. Hunsell, chief of construction, and Bruce J. Baxter, superintendent of the municipal garage. Both officials will be exonerated if council approves the findings of the committee, reached Tuesday afternoon after an exhaustive inquiry into the complaints.

The third proposition, which may be included in the special session call, will be to decide on a location for the new city hall.

Practically every interest involved in erection of the viaducts has approved the plans, and they now are ready for council's official sanction, according to announcement Tuesday.

A strong sentiment in council favoring location of the new municipal building on the site formerly occupied by the girl's high school developed Tuesday among members of city council, despite a determined effort of property owners and others interested in forcing erection of the structure on the strip adjacent to Fulton County courthouse.

Predictions were Tuesday that unless another tract is selected by the next regular meeting of city council, a concerted effort will be made to locate the building on the site of the present structure at Forsyth and Marietta streets.

their testimony around noon when the case will be given to the jury. The state elected to try the men separately and the next defendant to go on trial, following Lee's trial, has not yet been announced.

Sheriff Thigpen, Henry McLendon and Joe Lee also are under indictment charged with arson in connection with the burning of Sheriff Thigpen's automobile which it is alleged was used by the floggers the night Flanders was flogged.

Members of the jury are: R. E. Ward, clerk; W. S. Bass, farmer; J. W. Brady, farmer; A. C. Garato, farmer; C. R. Sanders, farmer; R. L. Blisset, farmer; Barney Beasley, farmer; W. F. McCrimmon, farmer; W. F. Porter, farmer; C. C. Carter, railroad man; J. L. Lowrey, farmer, and Matthew Meeks, farmer.

Twenty-five witnesses will be called by the state and 20 by the defense. Lee was indicted jointly with his son Joe Lee, Sheriff W. L. Thigpen and Henry McLendon, who the state elected to try each defendant separately.

Efforts were made this morning to further delay the trial when the defense entered a plea of missing witnesses. Judge Graham, however, issued attachments for the absent witnesses and the striking for a jury began.

Sheriff Thigpen is busy with his routine duties, he says, and his attorney, J. S. H. Hunsell, has announced that the officer will be ready when the state calls.

There was a large crowd on hand when court opened, but there was order and quiet in the courtroom. Flanders was not present at the opening of court.

Among other important witnesses will be Mrs. O. B. Moore, N. B. Hutcherson, and L. I. Lanier, all of whom are expected to testify as to Flanders' conduct on the night he was flogged.

NO LET UP IN PROBE OF ALABAMA FLOGGINGS.

Birmingham, Ala., August 16.—(AP) Attorney General Charles C. McCall, of Alabama, pledged "no let up" in investigation and prosecution of Jefferson county floggers in a statement issued tonight after a meeting here which included Mr. McCall, County Solicitor Jim Davis, Assistant Solicitor General John Coleman, and Assistant Attorney General John J. Haynes.

In the meantime, authorities of two other counties were confronted with new flogging cases. J. C. Wyatt, of Talladega county, in a letter to The Birmingham Age-Herald, said that he was taken from his residence May 23 and beaten. He declared he appeared before a grand jury and had warrants sworn out for "part of the mob" but that no action had been taken.

Will Nelson, negro, of Calhoun county, reported he had been whipped by a masked band, members of which were armed with whips and clubs. With the exception of Davis and Drake the meeting here represented the backbone of the prosecution of Blount county floggers, whose recent trials resulted in two penitentiary sentences and five fines and jail sentences.

"Magnetic Influence" Of Virginia Highway Proves To Be Myth

Afton, Va., August 17.—(AP)—Many motorists who have traveled the road that winds its way over the steep inclines of the Blue Ridge mountains near here have complained to state authorities of a "magnetic influence" that has retarded their cars on the apparently only level stretch on the highway.

Complaints were so numerous in recent weeks that investigation was ordered, and H. G. Shirley, state highway commission chairman, reported today that the "magnetic influence" was a myth founded on an optical illusion and that the retarding force was none other than the gravity that pulled an apple down on Newton's head.

The apparently level stretch was said to be one of the steepest grades on the mountain but did not look steep in comparison with the many short, sharp grades on the highway.

DEMAND FOR PROHIBITION PLANK EXPECTED

Winona Lake, Ind., August 16.—(AP) Prohibition plans may be demanded of the two major political parties next year by the Anti-Saloon League of America, it was indicated at today's session here of the executive committee of the league.

Some of the dry leaders in urging such action pointed out that the league has never before demanded that the republicans and the democrats declare their position on prohibition at their national conventions. Withdrawal of President Coolidge has opened the possibility of a "dark horse" candidate on the republican ticket and the league leaders fear such a candidate might not be favorable to prohibition.

Therefore it was urged today that a demand be made for a dry plank by both leading parties so that whoever is named as a candidate will be bound by the convention's declaration of policy.

At the same time all prospective candidates are being carefully studied as to their position on the wet and dry question. If the executive committee decides to make a demand for a dry plank, an open declaration as to candidates may be withheld at this time.

The executive committee late today heard a report on the case of Dr. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, who was convicted of contempt by the Indiana supreme court and sentenced to sixty days imprisonment. The committee adopted unanimously a resolution expressing confidence in Dr. Shumaker and deploring any attempt to stifle free speech.

Shumaker charged that members of the supreme court were prejudiced in liquor cases.

MANY JOBS OFFERED PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Rapid City, S. D., August 16.—(AP) Plenty of opportunities for work—some real and some fanciful—are coming to President Coolidge to take him on his tour of the country.

In answer to inquiries today, however, it was said at the executive office that Mr. Coolidge does not expect to succeed the late E. H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, nor does he expect to become president of Amherst college, his alma mater.

Events at the summer white house are so shaping themselves that the president and Mrs. Coolidge may prolong their visit in the Black Hills until possibly late in September.

Mr. Coolidge's calendar appears to be filling rather than diminishing the days go on, with engagements dated now as late as the second week of next month. The Rapid City High school where the chief executive is to spend the night of September 15 "or even later," although school originally was to have opened September 16.

To-morrow the president will view the Indians on the government reservation at the Pine Ridge agency, where another native Indian program has been prepared for him.

Bomb Wrecks Sacco Vanzetti Juror's Home

Boston, August 16.—(AP)—Governor Alvin T. Fuller tonight indicated he would take immediate steps toward offering a reward for the capture and conviction of those responsible for the explosion which wrecked the home of Louis McHardy, Sacco-Vanzetti trial juror, in East Milton today.

In a letter to McHardy, written after an interview at the statehouse with Louis J. McHardy, eldest son of the juror, Fuller stated that the time of the explosion, Governor Fuller said:

have just learned the details of the outrage that was perpetrated on your home early this morning and I find it impossible to express in language my feelings about it. It is, of course, a relief to know that your wife and children escaped harm, but that is the only redeeming feature of the whole affair.

"Everything that the commonwealth can do to discover the persons that are responsible for the destruction of your home will be done, I assure you," Fuller wrote.

The juror's home was destroyed by a bomb which exploded in the front yard. The bomb was thrown from a car driven by a man who was seen running away from the scene.

GARY SUCCESSOR CHOICE DELAYED

New York, August 16.—(AP)—The financial capital of the world said a last farewell today to Elbert H. Gary, for many years one of its most important figures, when his body was taken to Wheaton, Ill., where the steel magnate scored his early triumphs.

The funeral train was operated as a special section of the Twentieth Century Limited, preceding the passenger express along a cleared track. The body, contained in a rose covered casket, lay on a platform in a club car.

After New York had seen its last of Gary, who died yesterday, attention was centered on speculation concerning his successor as chairman of the board of the United States Steel company. It was indicated, however, that no selection would be made until September and there were many who believed the post would be left vacant perhaps indefinitely. A special meeting of the finance committee, set for today, was postponed.

During recent absence of Gary abroad and because of ill health his duties have been performed by James A. Farrell, president of the corporation, and Percival Forester, treasurer.

Several names have been mentioned as possible successors to the chairmanship, among them those of Farrell, former Governor Nathan L. Miller, general counsel of the company; Myron C. Taylor and Percival Forester, the latter two being among its directors.

WHEATON IS READY FOR GARY FUNERAL.

Chicago, August 16.—(AP)—The quiet streets of Wheaton, which knew the youthful steps of Elbert H. Gary, then unknown outside his home town, will tomorrow echo the tread of a stranger, bringing home his body freighted with honors the world had paid its steel master.

The body of the chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, accompanied by Mrs. Gary, associates and friends, will arrive here from New York tomorrow by automobile.

From 2 until 7 p.m., it will lie in state, and those who wished the barefoot country boy rise to a dominant place in world finances may look upon him for the last time. The funeral will be held Thursday morning.

IRISH CABINET ESCAPES DEFEAT

Dublin, August 16.—(United News).—The single vote of the speaker, cast to decide a tie, saved the government in the Irish cabinet of deputies Tuesday from falling before a combined attack by laborites and republicans.

Defeat for the government would have meant formation of Ireland's first labor government. It would have held office only with the support of republicans who openly oppose the oath of allegiance to King George V.

Labor Leader Tom Johnston introduced a lack of confidence motion which was defeated by a vote of 10 to 9.

But when a vote was taken, there were 71 votes for and 71 against. It was necessary for Speaker Michael Hayes to vote to break the tie.

King Ben Purnell's Memory Completes Testimony in Dissolution Suit Proves Faulty in Court

St. Joseph, Mich., August 16.—(AP) Benjamin Purnell, leader of the House of David, appeared before Judge Louis H. Fead for his third and final time in the state's suit to dissolve the colony shortly before the defense rested its case today. Purnell, propped up on embroidered pillows and fanned by his constant attendant, Florence McCaslin, the colony nurse, the aged leader answered in whispers the questions of George E. Nicholas, special state's attorney.

His first questions related to passages in the Star, House of David publication, telling of an "inner" and "outer" court. "You have two theories, one for the Gentiles, and one for the House of David members, haven't you?" Nicholas asked. "In the common way of teaching, yes," Purnell answered.

Shown a telegram written by the county clerk of Greenup county, Kentucky, stating that he did not file a divorce against his first wife, Angelina Riley, until 1883, three years after his marriage to Mary Purnell, Benjamin replied:

"The lawyer told me it wasn't necessary to get a divorce. But I know I related the suit in 1879 and later withdrew it."

At times his answers were vague and he failed to remember incidents which other witnesses have recalled in the life of the colony.

Asked why he thought he could not get a fair trial in Berrien county, Purnell answered: "That wouldn't be hard to think." He denied fleeing from the colony in a covered wagon when a raid was threatened on the colony. "I took a sleigh ride that night," he said. The state had brought out tes-

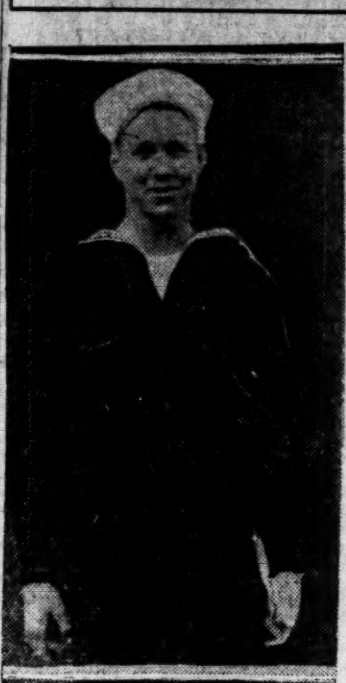

Flames Damage Minister's Home; 'Fire-Bug' Sought

Fire, believed by police to have been of incendiary origin, did considerable damage to the home of the Rev. S. F. Miller, at 974 Oglethorpe avenue, early Tuesday night. The fire was discovered shortly after 8 o'clock by Motorcycle Officers W. T. Milam and G. W. Richardson. Upon investigation, they found crumpled paper under all of the furniture and beds and in various other places about the house. Practically every room in the house was ablaze when firemen arrived.

The house, according to police, was owned by Mrs. W. L. Barker, of 964 Oglethorpe avenue, and was occupied by Rev. Miller, pastor of the North Boulevard Christian church.

Neighbors stated that Rev. Miller and members of his family left the house about 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A complete investigation will be conducted by members of the detective department today, it was stated.

STILL LIVES

ROBERT HUGHES SMITH.

MIXUP OF BODIES CLEARED AT LAST

The undertaking establishment. They had come to identify the body as that of their son, brother and friend. An examination disclosed that the frame of the dead man was appreciably larger than that of the man they knew. Also the third and fourth toes of the left foot were not joined together, a characteristic of their relative. Here was a ray of hope.

The examination was continued and at about the time members of the family were ready to accept the ruling of the navy department that the body was that of the boy they mourned, a second message was received from Washington at the undertaking parlor stating that the dead man was Robert Henry Smith.

Still doubting their good fortune, members of the family communicated with the commander of the U. S. S. Maryland docked at Port Angeles, Wash. "Robert is well and quite all right," came the answering message.

So when Charles A. Smith, of the United States army, stationed near Nicaragua, arrives in Atlanta today to attend his foster brother's funeral, he will join in the celebration of the family, which has gathered from the four corners of the world.

An aged grandmother, Mrs. J. W. Hughes, 74 of Atlanta, nearly blind relative to Robert Hughes was almost prostrated with grief at the apparent loss of her only surviving relative before the identity of the dead man was definitely established. She accepted without question the report of the federal government, and who wouldn't? And wasn't it natural that the navy authorities to identify the

British Plane Lands in China; Battle Ensues

BY JOHN POWELL.
(By Leased Wire to the Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Shanghai, August 16.—A British airplane that has been making daily flights over Chinese territory came to grief today when engine trouble forced it to land about five miles outside international settlement. The airman, who were injured, immediately notified the British authorities. The authorities rushed a motor truck to the scene, salvaging the engine before the Chinese troops arrived. A squabble ensued, the Chinese retaining the plane. However, they were unable to prevent the British from taking the body back within the foreign boundaries.

Qui Chi, vice minister of foreign affairs of the Nanking national government, said tonight that he intends to keep the wings in retaliation for the British violation of China's territorial integrity, pointing out that the Chinese officially protested against the British daily flights, but the protest was not heeded.

Northern troops under Marshal Sun Chuanfang captured the town of Yang Chow, located on the Grand canal just north of the mouth of the Yangtze river, while another northern army is advancing down the Tsin-pukow railway to claim the capture of Chuchow, about 20 miles north of Nanking.

body as that of Robert Hughes since the only mark of identification was a letter written by W. W. Smith, formerly of Atlanta, but now of Statesville, N. C.?

The missing letter was written by Mr. Smith when he was employed in Atlanta in 1925 by a local manufacturing establishment, had been received by Robert Henry, who knew of the existence of Robert Hughes and who just kept the missive to deliver it in person. He never had the opportunity.

Mrs. C. W. Powers, foster mother of Robert Hughes, lives at 9 Cassanova street, Atlanta. She had made all funeral arrangements and notified relatives of the tragedy.

Young Smith's life reads like fiction. His mother died when he was 2 1/2 years old, a year later his father died, and he was adopted by the Smiths. At the age of 15 he entered the navy and has remained in the service since that time.

Workmen today will cover the grave at Marvin churchyard, near Decatur, but the body of Robert Hughes will not be encased in a coffin resting beneath it.

Now, the body of Robert Henry Smith, who it is understood, has no family of his own, will be sent to the national cemetery at Arlington, for interment.

The father of the Atlanta boy will go back to his work at Statesboro, N. C., whence he came for the "funeral." Mrs. C. W. Powers, of 9 Cassanova street, Atlanta, has dried her tears, and all is well again among the Atlanta Smiths.

WEALTHY PACKER IS DEAD IN LONDON

J. OGDEN ARMOUR.

London, August 16.—(AP)—J. Ogden Armour, wealthy Chicago packer, died at the Carlton hotel late today.

Mrs. Armour, his wife, Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Jr., his daughter, and her husband were at the bedside. Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell had been summoned from California when it first became known several weeks ago that Mr. Armour's illness was grave, and raced to England in order to be at his bedside.

Mother's Death Withheld.

Mr. Armour, whose illness developed only a week after he arrived in London on his usual summer holiday trip in July, was too ill throughout to be told of his mother's death which occurred three weeks ago.

No medical bulletin had been issued throughout his illness, but it is understood that he first suffered from typhoid fever, the crisis of which he passed. His system, greatly weakened by the fever, never really regained strength enough to permit him to be moved out of London to a more favorable locality. Then apparently pneumonia developed and his heart was too weakened to stand the strain.

BUSINESS OF ARMOUR
ONCE WORTH BILLION.

Chicago, August 16.—(AP)—J. Ogden Armour, who once controlled a billion dollar a year business, but who liquidated his holdings to such an extent that he had virtually vanished from financial and commercial fields, died today in London in his sixty-fourth year.

Armour's holdings had so dwindled in recent years that in 1925 the federal revenue office showed his income not taxable. He at one time declined $150,000,000 for his interest in the packing company alone, and was once the largest owner of bank stock in Chicago.

Interest in Men.

His interest in men drew for him universal affection, and he seemed to delight in his friendship with his employees.

"Overcome the obstacles within and the obstacles without will be easily conquered," he believed.

"A prosperous business never ceases to grow and to make room for those who demonstrate their merit," he once told his employees. The hardest job any man has is to compete with himself. Any man may be outdone by himself without recognizing the cause.

Tentative arrangements were made to start for home with Armour's body next Saturday. Under that plan the body would reach Chicago a week from next Sunday.

Fate played its part in making and unmaking the Armour fortune. Deflation at the close of the civil war aided Philip D. Armour and at the close of the world war gravely weakened the financial power of his son, J. Ogden.

Start of Fortune.

Before the end of the civil war in 1865, food was scarce, and in speculative markets the east, meat pork sold at $40 a barrel. Philip Armour, then in the packing business in Milwaukee, went to New York and sold excited speculators all the pork they would take at $40 a barrel. They predicted it would go to $60 a barrel. Within three days the market began to weaken. Armour is said to have netted millions.

Fifty years later, J. Ogden Armour was on the other side of the market. In 1919 his enterprises were expanded to the limit. The total output of Chicago packing plants alone was $183,000,000 worth of meat and meat products. Hogs in July reached the record breaking price of $23.00 a hundred.

Mr. Armour publicly expressed his faith that the country had entered a new era of high wages and high prices. In April, he said the guardians of prosperity were "courage, optimism and confidence." In July, he said the welfare of the country required that production should be stimulated. In December meat prices had dropped 30 per cent. In 1920 Armour and company announced a refinancing, and 1921 the price of hogs dropped from 14 cents to 7 cents a pound.

Another concern bearing his name, and in which he was heavily interested, the Armour Grain company, was liquidated this year.

Exodus of Mills
South Blamed On Bay State Laws

Williamstown, Mass., August 16.—(AP)—Massachusetts legislation is forcing cotton mills from New England to the south where long hours and cheap labor can be obtained, Professor John A. Todd, of the London Cotton Exchange, told the Institute of Politics today.

Bay State laws limiting child and female labor are shifting the cotton manufacturing center to more propitious regions, he asserted.

Discussing the British empire as a potential competitor of America in cotton production, he said that India can raise cotton at a lower cost than any country in the world today, it being only a question of time until she is competing with America. She has increased production 50 per cent within the past ten years, and he believed would probably increase it by as much again by 1937 if a stabilized price of 18 cents could be maintained. The corresponding increase in consumption and buying power would check the menace of surplus production, he thought.

BISHOP IS NAMED BUREAU DIRECTOR

Appointment of C. H. Bishop, of Ashburn, as director of the state bureau of markets was announced Tuesday by Eugene Talmadge, commissioner of agriculture.

Mr. Bishop is one of the outstanding agricultural developers of the state. He has served for many years as a leader of the Georgia association and was one of the framers of the famous "Turner county plan" of farming.

As manager of the Ashburn creamery, one of the first creameries to be established in Georgia, Mr. Bishop has enjoyed wide experience in marketing all kinds of farm products in addition to milk. Success of this creamery, which is operated on the co-operative plan, led to the establishment of creameries in other parts of the state at such a rapid rate that creamery butter production increased in Georgia 6,000 per cent in six years.

Mr. Bishop is experienced as an organizer, is an able executive and director and knows agricultural conditions in Georgia in every detail. It is understood that Mr. Bishop will assume his new post immediately, succeeding Judge Max McRae, of McRae, who held the post temporarily until a permanent director of the markets bureau could be selected.

other sections of the country are embraced within the provisions of the protective tariff.

"For that reason," he added, "I have for years advocated a tariff on citrus fruits, pineapples, tomatoes and other products of Florida. Under the present protective tariff system vegetable products in my state are being discriminated against as compared with the treatment extended products from other sections of the United States, and as I assured the growers of Florida, will during the coming congress, insist that this discrimination be removed."

Protective Tariff On Dixie Products Asked by Trammell

Miss Grace Harris Goes From Southern Business College As Steno-Bookkeeper To Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.

The Southern's Training Qualifies for Responsible Positions.

While new pupils are daily enrolling for the fall term around at the Southern Shorthand and Business University, the big firms, always remembering where to obtain the most efficient stenographer and bookkeepers, are supplying their vacancies from the finishing students of this long-established and well-known institution.

Miss Grace Harris is appreciative of the fact that she received her business training at the Southern, and writes that she could not have held her position, which she has recently accepted with one of Atlanta's largest firms, if she had not taken her course at the Southern.

L. W. Arnold, President,
Southern Shorthand and Business University,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir: This is just a word of thanks for the aid that you and the Southern Business College have rendered me in getting placed in the business world.

I find now that if I had not taken my course with you, I would not have been able to fill the place I now have with Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company.

As steno-bookkeeper, I bring into my present position every bit of training I received at the Southern, and I now realize how much that training means to me.

I enjoy my work, for it is with a pleasant environment, with congenial colleagues, and a wholly agreeable line of work that I understand through my training at the Southern.

Again thanking you and the entire faculty, I am
Yours very respectfully,
(MISS) GRACE HARRIS.

The Southern's advantages may be briefly summed up as follows:
Established 61 years and growing daily. Better now than ever before.

Three times as many shorthand and bookkeeping teachers as are employed by any other business college in Georgia, hence its pupils receive from two to three times as much attention and drilling daily and, as a consequence, finish their courses of study in two to three months' less time, and, at the same time, are more efficient.

Seventy-five brand-new typewriters, 112 in all. The Twentieth Century Bookings, the best extant. Short and practical methods, time-savers. The indorsement of 80 out of every TOO much, of course. And what's to be done? Wishing won't bring towns any closer together... curtailing the territory won't develop new markets or stave off aggressive competition.

What about working the large towns in person, and covering the "in-between" places where the pickings are apt to be slim—by telephone? Try it for three months, and watch your volume mount while the cost-per-call takes a tumble.

Our files are full of evidence that this "key-town-plan" pays well. And incidentally we'll gladly pass on to you tips on telephone selling sent to us by firms in your own line of business. Ask for a copy of the booklet, "One Way to Reduce Business Costs."

SPOTLIGHTING THE SOLONS

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Don't Shoot the Men Who Are Doing What the People Want!

The public expectation of brilliant constructive legislation that was so ripe throughout the state when this general assembly came into session seems now to have petered out.

Only curiosity remains to see how the membership can weather through the fog and fustian and finally escape to face the welcoming clubs of their constituents.

There can be no debate about the fact that the operations of the assembly thus far have been dismally disappointing to the progressive people of the state.

And, on the other hand, criticism at this stage of the game can work no good to anyone. The members must generally be credited with intelligence and consciences. Each one of them undoubtedly justifies to himself what he has done, or refused to do, while the session proceeded.

On his record he is probably prepared to stand or fall before his people back home.

When the assembly came up to the capital in June the all-pervading issue was whether Georgia would be advanced by progressive legislation to the station among other states which should rightfully be hers, or whether purely factional and traditionally pernicious policies would again get the upper hand and put a ratchet on the wheels of forward motion.

The Unexpected Happened.

That which was not feared has happened, however, and this has been so far the most stubbornly stagnant legislature assembled in the state in 50 years.

We must assume that it is the sort of legislature that the people want, otherwise it would not be here. Many months ago I wrote in this column that the epidemic disease afflicting the people of Georgia is "taxophobia," but I had hoped that stern necessities of the state had cured it enough to allow more elastic action to our government. The hope was a vain one. The people are not ready to quit the tail-end of the procession of states.

We must be contented with things as they are.

While the people in neighboring states are riding high upon coordinated paved roads and seeing their wealth in consequence daily mounting, we Georgians can show them how much easier it is to ride in mud and how much easier it is to pay taxes on low-priced lands than those that are in eager demand at advancing prices. We are better prepared to make such demonstrations than the people of any other state in America.

We can do more than that! We can show the country what it is like to be the kind of people who only need about half the education of other Americans in order to be the proud, most basic and self-satisfied people on the planet. That's what we are!

Coming to a Show-Down.

The situation, therefore, on capital hill is not a happy one. The legislature is the kind of people who only need about half the education of other Americans in order to be the proud, most basic and self-satisfied people on the planet. That's what we are!

But it cannot find the money to finance those useful appropriations. It could do it easily, but it hasn't got the nerve for the big job.

It could increase the collection of poll taxes by $1,000,000 next year, but even a back of them is afraid to propose it.

It could get another $1,000,000 like picking it off a plum tree by levying a constitutionally authorized communication tax on the $400,000 alcohol men in the state who are liable to military service and yet belong to no military organization.

It could easily raise all the money the state should have by an income, or sales tax, or both, and hurt nobody in purse or estate.

But the legislature lacks the courage to do any of those things.

There is apparently nothing left but for Governor Hardman to veto all the advanced appropriations, cut the expense bill back to the visible revenues, nail the responsibility on the general assembly, refuse an extra session, and let the people seek the explanations from their representatives.

A County Splendidly Served.

Both of us, Editor Jim Nevin and myself, have had our eyes upon Senator R. P. Lester, of Covington, who represents the 34th district. Jim and I are old hands at judging the curves of legislators, and we are agreed that Senator Lester has shown the superior qualities of a careful, sane and patriotic law-maker of whom his constituents can be justifiably proud. He inherits public abilities and virtues from long lines of forebears who have served both state and nation.

In his earnest efforts to adjust and compose the Stone Mountain Confederal memorial difficulties he exhibits both devotion to the public and charity toward conflicting interests.

His co-counsellor in the house, Hon. G. Adams, also of Covington, is a strong and progressive coadjutor. He has clarified and conservative views of state policy and can be counted on to lend his efforts to the best interests of his fellow citizens.

These two fine gentlemen maintain the prestige of Newton county as one of the most cultured and forward-looking communities of Georgia.

PECULIAR MISHAPS PUT MAN AND BOY IN GRADY HOSPITAL

C. R. Walker, of 15 Seville street, was treated at the Grady hospital Tuesday for a broken leg, sustained while climbing over a wire fence, losing his balance, the leg caught in the strands of wire, hospital reports show.

Another accident growing out of an incident involving climbing occurred when Johnnie Hockwell, 10, of 546 Ethel street, scaled a tree in an effort to salvage his kite and was burned by a short-circuited wire he touched in the tree foliage. Neighbors were attracted to the scene by the cries of the lad and the blazing kite. At the Grady hospital, where the boy was taken for treatment, doctors said the shock did him no great harm but that some time would be required to heal the burns on the child's hands.

THE BANKHEAD—The Bankhead highway through Lawrenceville, Athens, Anderson and Greenville, and on up to Washington is in the best condition ever. Though the Danville route from Greensboro to Richmond probably has the better of the Bankhead through Durham just at this time.

Save for a few miles where the Carolinian meet, the Bankhead is paved from Anderson, S. C., to the Virginia line. Georgia has added a few miles of pavement between Decatur and Lawrenceville, near Athens, and through Hartwell.

The Constitution's Falcon-Knight pathfinders cars are now being driven over all routes between Atlanta and the New York section, but it will be several weeks before motorists will be available of this territory.

New motorist folders are now available at The Constitution's travel bureau, to practically all points in the Carolinas, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and parts of other states. A call at the travel bureau will greatly aid you in planning your trip. Routings, conditions, elevations, given to all, without cost. Motorist folders are 25 cents.

UNION MAY ASSIST TEXTILE STRIKERS

Henderson, N. C., August 16.—(AP) Although the strikers at the Harriet cotton mills here are not members of the textile workers' organization, they are labor forces in the state today were planning to take an active hand in the situation and to back the strikers financially and otherwise, it was learned today.

No effort, however, will be made to unionize the strikers until financial aid is forthcoming from labor circles, Alfred Labor, of the state Federation of Labor, who is here observing the situation, said today. Two truck loads of groceries were delivered to needy strikers' families yesterday, he said, but he did not specify where the funds to pay for them came from.

Daily meetings of strikers' committees are being held but the women operatives who comprise the greater number of the 800 strikers are not participating in these meetings and are not being urged to attend, it was said. Leaders, however, expect them to remain away from the mills.

Workers' Demands.

The workers are asking a return to the 1924 wage scale, which is 12 1/2 per cent higher than the wages of 1924. The reduction was made in 1924 because business was bad and the workers assert that business has picked up to such an extent that they are justified in asking a return to the old scale.

Union leaders, according to information from the strikers' camp, today were concentrating on efforts to close the North Henderson plants from which a number of operatives already have walked out. If this were successful the total number of idle hands would be 1,400.

Strikers' spokesmen variously reported addition to their ranks of 200 to 300 operatives who have walked out, while the mill owners said the number is much smaller. The main losses from the mills, it is agreed, have been from the card room with the remainder of the working force practically intact.

Hope of Strikers.

If the card room force can be reduced sufficiently, however, strikers' spokesmen point out, the mills will of necessity have to close as the remainder of the plants are dependent for their work on the output of this department.

There has been no picketing of mill property since the walkout.

It is understood that meetings here of union workers are being held in several North Carolina cities at which funds to aid the Henderson strikers are being solicited.

Funds are being raised in Henderson by popular subscription and it was said today that a representative of the textile union from New York is in his way to Henderson to observe the strike and attempt unionization of the workers. It was also declared that he will "have or will get" money to aid the strikers.

Few of the families affected by the strike are in serious circumstances, say strike leaders and the mill folk generally are prepared to hold out indefinitely.

No determined effort is being made to reopen the idle mills. Steam is kept in the boilers and watchmen patrol the boats but outside aid has not been solicited by the operators and apparently no attempt is being made to enlist workers from any local source.

STRIKING CAROLINA COTTON WORKERS REMAIN ADAMANT

Henderson, N. C., August 16.—(AP) Concentrated efforts of textile union leaders, taking a hand in the strike of 800 employees of four Harriet cotton mills in South Henderson to induce an additional 600 workers in the North Henderson factories to walk out in sympathy, tonight had borne no appreciable fruit.

The 800 seek a 12 1/2 per cent pay increase, which would be a return to 1924 wage basis, because they say that business conditions are such now that they are justified in receiving more money.

The 12 1/2 per cent they charge was sliced from their pay checks in 1924 when business conditions were bad. Pay among the striking forces reaches an average now of only $9.90 weekly, they declare.

Some employees of the big North Henderson mills have joined the ranks of the idle, strikers' spokesmen variously estimating the number from 200 upward.

Mill owners, however, declare that only a few walked out in sympathy and the North Henderson mills, untroubled, continue at normal capacity.

PARIS DETECTIVE TOLD TO CATCH DIPS; IS HOOKED

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Paris, August 16.—For several days a detective has been assigned to the opera district in an effort to catch the pickpockets who have robbed many American tourists. Today he took his station in front of the Cafe de la Paix, where Americans crowded the terrace. Half an hour later the officer ran to the nearest police station to tell the officials that his pocket-book containing 500 francs, (about $20), and a gold watch had been lifted by pick-pockets.

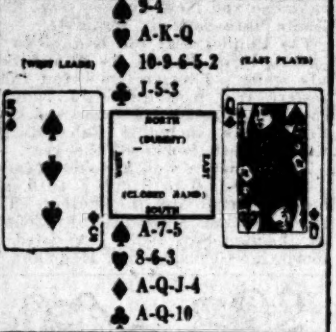

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.

The pointer for today is:

On the loss of a necessary finesse will give the long adverse hand the lead, there is no advantage in the hold-up.

Yesterday's Hand.

South Declarer, contract No Trump.

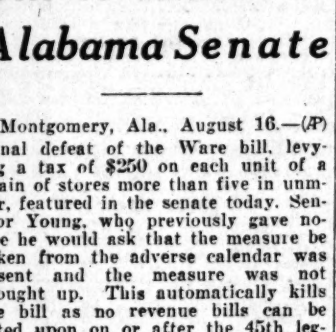

Question: On the first trick should Closed Hand play the Ace or a small Spade?

My answer slip says the Ace.

South should win the first trick because he sees that he can make one Spade trick, three Heart tricks and two Minor Aces; to obtain game, three more tricks are needed and he only way to win all three is to put Dummy in the lead and try the Diamond finesse; risking the danger that West holds the King of Diamonds and will win the trick.

The hold-up of the Spade Ace might exhaust East, but could not exhaust West; therefore, it would not be helpful in this case and, as a Small Slam might result if both the Diamonds and Clubs can be finessed successfully, nothing would be gained by the hold-up and a trick worth 80 points might be lost by allowing the adversaries to take the first two tricks.

Today's Hand.

Bridge Answer Slip of August 17.

On the first trick closed hand should play the ... of Spades. (Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

Chain Store Tax Bill Is Killed In Alabama Senate

Montgomery, Ala., August 16.—(AP) Final defeat of the Ware bill, levying a tax of $250 on each unit of a chain of stores more than five in number, featured in the senate today. Senator Young, who previously gave notice he would ask that the measure be taken from the adverse calendar was absent and the measure was not brought up.

The sheriff's feed bill, which would allow the state to seize the feed of the bill as no revenue bills can be acted upon on or after the 45th legislative day which is Thursday.

The senate adopted the report of the committee on conference placing motor buses under supervision of the Alabama public service commission. Senator Warren's bill, providing civil service supervision of fire departments in Tuscaloosa and cities of the state of 35,000 or more than 10,000 population was passed by substitute. Selma, Florence and other cities were excluded.

The Bonner home brew bill was defeated in the house when by a vote of 44 to 43 the members refused to require of the judiciary committee a report on the bill. O. L. Tompkins led the fight for passage of the measure which will be left in committee when the legislature adjourns sine die.

In order to correct an error in the general revenue law the house Tuesday passed a bill which permits telephone, telephone and express companies to take credit in paying their gross receipts tax of the amount due as a license tax under the revenue bill of 1919. The intention in requiring a license based on gross receipts was to make it in lieu of the license tax levied in 1919 but the intention was not written in the new bill, A. M. Tunstall, author of the measure said.

Cape Town, South Africa, August 16.—When the steamer house arrived at Durban from Trinidad and Calcutta the captain reported a mysterious sickness among 800 emigrants, resulting in 16 deaths, the majority after only two days' illness.

Port authorities say the disease is pneumonia coupled with a mysterious third trouble.

The ship was quarantined.

ST. LOUIS SUSPECT IS NOT WOODWARD

The world-wide search for Floyd Woodward, master bunco artist, who is wanted by John A. Roynin, solicitor general, to face charges of murder in the death of Ed Mills in 1916, Tuesday afternoon was exactly where it started seven years ago when St. Louis police, notified local authorities that the Floyd Woodward arrested Sunday in that city was not the man sought by Atlanta police.

Search for the St. Louis Woodward, who was arrested in a poker game and released on bond, was abandoned by St. Louis authorities when it became known definitely that he was not the man wanted here, it was learned from press dispatches. Identification of the St. Louis suspect as the noted Atlanta gambler failed on a comparison of Bertillon photographs and ages of the two men.

Officers in St. Louis said that the photograph of the Atlanta Woodward was of a man at least 50 years old, while the man arrested in St. Louis was only 23 years old. St. Louis police found in their files an old circular from Atlanta which bore the gambler's photograph. This picture showed little resemblance, if any, to the St. Louis man, according to Chief of Detectives Kaiser of that city.

A man who gave the name of Wilson was arrested with three others in St. Louis on the complaint of a fellow poker player, but posted bond immediately and was released. Blanket wires were sent out by St. Louis police to 40 cities explaining that three alleged confidence men were under arrest, and asking if they were wanted elsewhere. Wilson having been identified after his release on bond as "Floyd Woodward," Atlanta police replied immediately, asking St. Louis police to hold the man.

Announcement of the supposed capture of the Atlanta bunco artist created a great deal of excitement in police and court circles until later developments proved that the wrong man was held.

Los Angeles, August 16.—(AP)—Charles Spencer Chaplin was back in Los Angeles today prepared to open next Monday in a divorce court play which bids fair to be anything but a comedy.

A word concerning reported negotiations for a property settlement with the film comedian's young wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, was forthcoming from either domestic camp.

Chaplin revealed that he intended to complete "The Circus" and begin work soon on another comedy picture intended as a satire on fraternal organizations.

The film comedian more than eight months ago laid his trick card, big pants, big shoes and little derby and hastened east as his child wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, fired the first gun in her sensational divorce barrage.

SACCO-VANZETTI APPEAL FORECAST BY U. S. CARDINALS

Rome, August 16.—(AP)—That the American cardinals may have intervened in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case was admitted at the Vatican today, following Saturday's official denial that the pope had taken such action.

The cardinals, it was pointed out, might act in concert after consultation with the apostolic delegate, Archbishop Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, but even if they had done so it would not represent taking up the case on behalf of the Vatican.

It was explained that the holy see is in constant touch with the apostolic delegate on all affairs affecting the hierarchy, but since he has not the standing of a diplomat in America he never acts as intermediary between the Vatican and the United States government.

The possibility of the cardinals making a direct appeal to President Coolidge is considered here to be highly improbable.

Infestations running over 50 per cent during the past week were found in Choctaw, Holmes, Lauderdale, Lowndes, Marshall, Oktibbeha, Tate, Warren and Yazoo. The highest infestation of the week—95 per cent—was reported from Tate county.

Cotton has stopped fruiting in many localities and with favorable weather conditions for weevils, considerable injury to young bolls may be expected. Poisoning is now being done to remain on bottom land, as weevil injury may continue for several weeks in such places.

Weevils are four times as abundant as on this date last year, when the average infestation was only 10 per cent, the report shows. The flood area of the delta is still practically free of weevil, though some low infestations have been found in a few places.

Crackers Win Final Game 1 to 0—Mills to Join Club Today

Rhiel's Homer In Ninth Wins For Atlanta

Ray Francis and Rube Robinson in Duel; Each Allows Three Hits.

BY WHITNER CARY.
It was the last inning of the final game of the series between the Little Rock and Atlanta ball teams. One man was out, one ball on Billy Rhiel. For nine innings the portside slants of Ray Francis had dealt misery in the ranks of the Peble batsmen. During that time they had nipped him for but three hits while the run column was blank. For eight and one-third innings the left-hand delivery of old Rube Robinson had matched stride for stride the super work of the Cracker ace with the result that but two safe blows had dented the hit column of the Crackers, while a spotless sheet appeared where Rube Robinson was. The fans were in an uproar. That sensational pitcher's duel was bound to end. But each inning was the same story.

Crack! It was the report of the trusty stick of Billy Rhiel meeting Robinson's second offering. Away went the ball to deep center. Oliver made a dash and backed up against the fence. He looked like he was going to catch it. The fans started a moan. Suddenly they saw the Traveler left gardener make a hopeless gesture. The ball had gone beyond human control and landed safely in the colored bleachers. Billy Rhiel trotted around the bases for a home run. The Crackers won a wonderful ball game and the home fans went wild.

Now there may be more dramatic endings to a ball game during the rest of the present season, but it is extremely doubtful if any that have so far graced Mr. Martin's loop saw a more sensational climax or furnished more gut-bitten box work on the part of both hurlers than that memorable affair that thrilled the local fans Tuesday afternoon.

Both Francis and Robinson were in superb form. Three hits from each is more eloquent proof of this than any mere words could express. For the first three innings but nine Crackers faced the Rube. In but two innings gave the final old local player get to first. That's pitching a brand of ball that is hard to lose. It was a game that showed Robinson up in almost as brilliant colors as his own Ray.

The Cracker hurler was staring at a one hit game for eight and one-third innings. Then with two down in the ninth Gully and Battle got singles and the bases became congested when Cueto fumbled Green's grounder. It was a tense moment. Ainsmith ambled to the plate to bat for Shaw. The Traveler pinch hitter ended the suspense, however, by going out, Rhiel to Schwab. That was the only time that serious danger threatened Francis.

The only opportunity given the home gang to dent the run column, until Billy made himself famous in the final stanza, came in the fourth. With one down, Gilbert got an infield hit which was followed by Rhiel battering out a freak affair that was flayed by Battle, but which found no one covering first. Haas flew out to Green, but Shaw jammed the sacks when he fouled the ball on a force out at second on Cueto's grounder to Olivares. Schwab could not come through, however, and was an easy out at first.

With those two exceptions, it was a

JOE TINKER

Joe Tinker, famous old Cub shortstop, still holds at least one world's series record.
In the 1907 series, with the Cubs against the Detroit Tigers, Tinker helped check Hughie Jennings' first effort to win a world's championship by pulling off two double plays unassisted, the record in the fall classic.

Tinker, one-third of the famous old Tinkers to Evers to Chance combination, tried his hand as manager after his playing days were over, bossing the Cubs and Cincinnati Reds at various times. He became quite a holder in oil and finally devoted most of his time to his properties.

ball game that saw the two hurlers absolute masters of the situation. To make the dual performance all the more impressive, but one base on balls was given. This free pass was issued by Francis.

Another remarkable feature of the afternoon's performance was the few balls hit to the Little Rock outfield. During the entire game the visiting outer gardeners had but four chances. Robinson was forcing the Crackers to hit them on the ground. Battle, the Peble first baseman, had a busy afternoon, getting no less than 17 put outs.

Five innings saw the Travelers go out in one, two, three order, while two other frames saw but four men face Francis. Rube Robinson retired the Crackers in three up and three down style in no less than six frames, while in another but one extra man faced his sensational delivery.

No special sparkling bits of fielding marked the game, while five miscues marred the record. Freeman was guilty of one when he dropped Olivares' fly in the inning. Cueto accounted for two while Shaw and Olivares were guilty of the other two.

What might have proved a serious accident took place in the Peble's half of the sixth when Gully in a fit of disgust at having fouled out to Brock, hurled his bat in the general direction of the visiting dugout, where the Crackers flew up into the grandstand and hit a lady. No serious injury was done. Gully immediately went to the stand and lifting his cap, apologized to the fair fan in question for his careless act.

Jones Faces Tough Going At Minikahda

Rain Prevents Bob From Practicing on Arrival at Club.

Minneapolis, Minn., August 16. (AP)—George Von Elm, the champion, and Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston, of Minneapolis, are seen by Bobby Jones as the outstanding obstacles in his quest for the national amateur golf title this year. Arriving here today with two golfing proteges, Watts Gunn and Gene Cook, the British open champion and twice holder of the American amateur title, saw a mighty hard row ahead of him in the national amateur tournament at Minikahda here next week.

Jones considers himself "sadly off his game" and insists he has not been "on" for more than a year, not excepting the recent British open, where he laid his success to "lucky putts."

The Atlanta's desire to try out the Minikahda course at once was rebuffed by a heavy rain. He has never played the course, but has heard it is not to order for his wooden club, as all but three of the holes are under 500 yards.

Watts Gunn, says Jones, will be a serious threat if he plays the golf he has been showing in recent weeks. This year Gunn won the national intercollegiate championship. Cook has also been going strong. Jones says.

George Voigt, the brilliant Washington amateur, also arrives today, and each day remaining before the tournament opens next Monday is expected to see the arrival of additional amateurs, eager to try the course before actual competition begins.

Johnston is constructed much like Jesse Guifford, the famous Boston siege gun, and has a great temperament for match play. His game is almost careless in its automatic quality and we can't forget that advantage of knowledge of the course.

Lake Geneva, Wis., August 16.—(AP)—A hectic day of golf today left the defending champion, a southern star and five former champions in the contest for the women's western golf championship.

The title holder, Miss Dorothy Page, 18, of Madison, Wis., won her first round match handily over Anne Webster, of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., 6 up and 5 to play.

Miss Marion Turpie, of New Orleans, had to play 19 holes to overcome Mrs. Gregg Lufur, of Los Angeles, when Mrs. Lufur met a sty in the sixteenth hole.

Mrs. Dave Gaut, of Memphis, one of the former champions, met a tartar in June Cannon, of Milwaukee, but by scoring a well-balanced 43-42-85, won, 2 up.

A Texas went to the second round when Mrs. Eleanor Rosenthal Reinhardt, of Dallas, a former champion, put out Mrs. O. S. Hill, of Kansas City, Mo., 3 and 2. She will face Miss Page tomorrow.

Mrs. Harry Pressler, by shooting splendid golf except for an 8 on the seventh, defeated Mrs. R. F. Holloway, of Chicago, 2 and 1.

In another extra-hole match Frances Hadfield, of Milwaukee, who shared medal honors with Virginia Van Wye, of Chicago, at 80, went down to Elizabeth Dunn, of Indianapolis, Hoosier champion, on the twentieth hole.

Miss Van Wye came close to her first day's score by scoring one above par for the 14 holes she had to play to defeat, 5 to 4, Mrs. Perry Flake, of DeKalb, Ill., the only former champion to lose thus far.

Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn, of Kansas City, another former titleholder, ousted the only Iowa, Elizabeth Curtis, of Clinton, 6 and 5, while Mrs. Melvin Jones, of Chicago, also a member of the "former" tribe, by scoring 38, three under par on the second, won easily from Mrs. Jack Blakeslee, of Kenosha, Wis., 5 and 3.

HAWK-EYE-INC SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS

The Von Elm Situation.
For some reason or other we can't seem to get all excited about another Jones-Von Elm title battle in the national amateur this year. The reason being that we can't see any great likelihood of such a match taking place even if the bracketing places the two stars in such a position as to make their meeting in the finals possible.

There is no denying that George Von Elm is a great golfer. But we can't help but recall the history of the amateur at Baltusrol last year. You may remember that Bob Jones played the best amateurs in the business in his five rounds. He had to meet two former champions in Chick Evans and Francis Ouimet before he could come to blows with Von Elm and he had a terrific struggle against Dick Jones in the initial round.

Von Elm, on the other hand, faced no great opponents in his journey to the finals except Augustus, who was just shooting over his head for a day. When Von Elm met Watts Gunn the Atlanta star was just recovering from a tremendous struggle with Rudy Knepper which went to the final green and Watts was suffering from a relapse when George coasted through their match.

There is also another angle to consider. This year George Von Elm will be playing with the weight of a championship on his shoulders and that is a great weight for a man who has never held another major title.

A man who figures little in the dope this year looms more prominently in our personal dope than Von Elm. That man is Harrison R. Johnston, of St. Paul, more commonly known as "Jimmy" Johnston. Johnston has grown up on the Minikahda course and knows every blade of grass in the layout. He is endowed with a great golfing temperament and a greater golfing physique. At Oakmont this year Walter Hagen was heard to say, "That Johnston boy looks more like a football star than a golfer," and that description fits to a "T."

Johnston is constructed much like Jesse Guifford, the famous Boston siege gun, and has a great temperament for match play. His game is almost careless in its automatic quality and we can't forget that advantage of knowledge of the course.

Meets Attaway Friday

Above is Spike Webb, southern middleweight champion, who will meet Stiles Attaway, rising young battler, in Gainesville Friday night for the title.

SPIKE WEBB FLORIAN WINS HEADSTOWARD BY 5 LENGTHS GAINESVILLE AT SARATOGA

Gainesville, Ga., August 16.—(Special).—Spike Webb, southern middleweight champion, whose crown will be at stake Friday night when he meets Stiles Attaway, local flash, in a 10-round bout here, will arrive Wednesday from Atlanta, where he has been training for the title bout.

They say that the young Mr. Webb is quite adept at applying sleep punches to his opponents, but, on the other hand, there are those who say that Attaway, the pride and joy of local fans, can take just as hard as he can give.

Be that as it may, Spike Webb is reported to have won his last 10 fights by knockout and he will be one tough opponent for Attaway.

Webb won his title in Augusta last June by causing Tom O'Rourke to fade from the picture in a sudden and violent manner. Winning, thereby, a gold belt, emblematic of the southern middleweight crown, and donated by the American Legion of Augusta. This belt will go to the winner of Friday's embroglio.

Both the youngsters have been training hard for the fight and are now spending their time with light workouts and planning what to do when they meet each other in the ring.

The fight is being promoted by Eddie Hanlon, of Atlanta, for the benefit of the Municipal band of Gainesville. Fifty of the fairest young ladies in Gainesville started a ticket sale Monday and according to reports there has been a brisk sale. It is reported that a number of Atlanta people are planning on motoring up for the mill which starts at 8:30 o'clock, 7:30 Atlanta time.

Pitcher Recalled.
Mobile, Ala., August 16.—(AP)—Desperate over the showing of his pitching staff Manager Jimmy Hamilton, of the Nashville club, before leaving here this morning for New Orleans, announced that he had recalled Pitcher Bill Gould from the St. Augustine club of the Southeastern league. Gould will join Nashville at New Orleans.

Big Change Seen in Club's Inner Works

New Player Expected To Speed Up Keystone Combination.

BY BEN COTHRAN.
A shakeup in the Cracker infield, to take place immediately, was seen as the result of announcement Tuesday by Rell Spiller, Cracker president, that Ollie Mills, a shortstop, acquired not so long ago from Savannah in the Southeastern league, and possibly Bull Rauch, a pitcher, bought from the same club, would report for duty today.

This announcement was occasioned by the fact that on August 18, clubs in the Southern Association are allowed to add two more players to their roster.

May Shift Rhiel.
Although neither Rell nor Uncle Bert said anything about it Tuesday, it is highly probable that Bill Rhiel will be shifted to right field and Mills stuck in at second or short, and Cueto sent to second. Billy is a good hitter and a good ball player, but he has been the weak spot in the Crackers' double play combination throughout the season. You'll remember that when Bert Niehoff was playing second this season, with Bill in the outfield, the Crackers made more double plays than at any other time during the season.

Mills has been playing jam-up ball with Savannah all season, and has been on the starting end of numerous double plays for that club. At the end of the first half of the season, Savannah had completed something like 83 double plays, far and away ahead of the next team. Mills is not an old ball player, but he is said to know his business and to be a smart player. He has played in 95 games this season, been at bat 346 times and batted out 112 hits for a percentage of .324. Which would put him right up with the leading Cracker hitters. Don't forget, however, that he'll be in Class A baseball now, and don't expect that high an average. But he should speed up the infield, and reports have it that he'll be able to sock plenty good in Southern league baseball.

Mr. Spiller was not sure whether Bull Rauch would report along with Mills. Rell has a young pitcher over at Augusta named Cardner, who might be given a chance with the Crackers or sent to Montgomery in the Southeastern. Cardner is 25 years old and has won seven games and lost 11 this year. Not an imposing record, but he has been pitching for a losing ball club.

A Fair Hurler.
This young Mr. Rauch, a right hander, has been delivering the goods in Savannah, and has a pitching record of 15 games won and nine lost. He grew up in New Orleans, graduating from sandlot baseball into semi-pro, where he was seen and picked up by the manager of the Savannah club.

Mr. Spiller is right optimistic over the chances of his ball club. He says that his pitchers are all going good, which they are with these ball games that have been turned in recently. And Mr. Spiller said Tuesday night that in 1913 when the Crackers made such a drive down the stretch to win the pennant, that on August 15 of that year they were just as far from first place as they are now. Who was it that said, "Hope springs eternal?"

PETE REILLY IS SUSPENDED BY COMMISH

New York, August 16.—(AP)—Contrary to its usual procedure the New York state athletic commission today did suspend Paulino Uzcudun as a result of losing his match with Jack Delaney on a foul. Chairman Farley said the commission did not believe Paulino's offense was serious enough to warrant suspension.

Pete Reilly, Delaney's manager, was indefinitely suspended from acting as a second because he rushed into the ring after Paulino's disqualification, exhibiting Delaney's denied protective cup. Paulino's handlers claimed the cup had been dented before the fight. Reports of the two judges showed Paulino hit Delaney four times.

The commission was advised by Secretary of State Moore that it has no authority to fix ticket prices for boxing as it has done for several years. The opinion is based on the fact that the state has no authority to fix prices for amusements or entertainment projects.

This ruling may forecast lifting the limit of $2.50 for tickets for big heavyweight or title bouts.

WADE STARTS GRID SCHOOL IN FLORIDA

Lakeland, Fla., August 16.—(AP)—Football experts from a dozen states gathered here today to sit at the feet of Wallace Wade, Alabama mentor, in the first football school to be conducted by Southern college.

James H. Haywood, director of athletics at the college, is sponsoring the school, which will continue through August 26. Additional college and high school coaches from those registered for the course are expected on August 20, when D. X. Bible, Texas A. & M., and a member of the national rules committee, will explain changes in the rules since last year.

Chicks, Crackers In Twin Bill Today

The Memphis Chicks, in a twin bill, the first one starting at 2:15 o'clock, will be the double attraction at Spiller field this afternoon.

The way the Crackers have been going during the past few days, together with the splendid way in which the local hurlers are handling in low hit games, argues well for the Chicks to have plenty of opposition during their stay.

While the Crackers are practically out of the pennant race, they can still make a strong bid for first division honors, and if the pitching can hold up as it has during the past series, there is a likely possibility that the first division may house the tribe of Niehoff when the final September game goes into the discard.

Ghost Leader

CLYDE KELLY.

(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to The Constitution.)

Waco, Texas, August 16.—When Baylor university's Bears thunder out upon the gridiron this fall, a shadow will lead them.

The spirit of a youth, the late Clyde Kelly, will actually guide the team, for when an express train smashed out the lives of Captain Kelly and nine other Baylor athletes last January, his teammates decided not to name a successor.

Kelly, at halfback, was the mainstay of last season's Bears, and he was the unanimous choice for captain.

This fall, before each game, a team leader will be named.

Beautiful Church Ceremony Unites Miss Poole and Mr. Laws

Of interest to a wide circle of friends was the marriage of Miss Thelma Marie Poole to Joseph Benjamin Laws, Jr., which took place Tuesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the Central Presbyterian church, Rev. W. Emmett Davis performing the impressive rite.

The church was beautifully decorated with tropical palms and ferns interspersed with floor baskets of white and pink daisies and gladioli. At the altar tall cathedral candles tied with white tulle held burning tapers, which added a note of loveliness to the scene. The pews reserved for the family were decorated with sprays of daisies tied with tulle.

Preceding the ceremony a program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. Myrtle Mae Lowry and George McNulty sang "I Love Truly" and "O Promise Me." The wedding march from "Lohengrin" announced the approach of the bride party. "To a Wild Rose" was played softly during the ceremony.

Wedding Attendants. First to enter were the groomsmen, H. A. Beadle, Hubert Thomas Lockridge, Bob Shaw and W. V. Hawes, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Gertrude Harden of Cornelia; Miss Elizabeth Jackson and Miss Hallie Gertrude McWilliams. The attendants were becoming costumes fashioned alike in the pastel shades of taffeta made basque and elaborately trimmed with gold lace and hand-made flowers. Miss Harden wore blue, Miss Jackson wore green and Miss McWilliams wore yellow. Mrs. T. A. Poole, matron of honor, entered alone wearing a charming gown of orchid georgette fashioned along a large circle of friends. Next to enter was the ring-bearer, Master Clarence Buchanan, in a white satin suit, carrying a white lily, which held the ring. The bride, Miss Thelma Marie Poole, a sister of the bride, entered alone, wearing pink

Two firemen were killed when a wall of the burning structure crashed, and several others were badly injured.

Parker Trains Reptiles for Snake Battle

New Orleans, August 16.—(AP)—Former Governor John M. Parker, of Louisiana, who recently forsook the quiet life of his plantation home at St. Francisville to become state food relief dictator, is grooming two reptiles for a fight between a rattlesnake and a king snake.

While the date of the fight was reserved as a news "scoop" for his nephew, a reporter on a New Orleans newspaper, plans for the encounter were revealed today.

A rattlesnake, five feet long, caged at the former governor's plantation, is being primed for the fight. A few feet away in a pen surrounded by a galvanized iron fence, fire king snakes, a moccasin and several other reptiles of other varieties are being kept.

The former governor is an authority on snakes and handles them fearlessly. For several years he has been sought by friends to stage such a fight, and a number of close friends will be his guests for the event.

The fight will be held in the shade of a huge tree on the lawn of his plantation residence. The fighting reptiles will be imprisoned inside a galvanized iron fence to protect the spectators.

Motion pictures of the fight will be filmed.

BRITISH PAINTING TO BE EXHIBITED BY CUNARD LINE

Those Atlantans interested in art who are visiting New York in the near future will have the opportunity of seeing "Painting," the painting by Mrs. Dred Proctor, which is declared to be one of England's outstanding pictures of the year. It is being brought to America on the "Aquitania."

After the boat arrives in New York, August 19, the painting will be exhibited in the general booking offices of the Cunard line, 25 Broadway, for a week, before being returned to England on the "Beren-garia," on which it will hang in the lounge during transit.

The picture, which won instant recognition in the Royal Academy, was bought by the London Daily Mail, and upon its return to England will be presented by that newspaper to the British nation, after which it will remain permanently in England. It is a study of a beautifully modeled working-class woman, a dull, gray day.

A golf tournament, games and stunts, dinner and dancing were included in the program for the afternoon and night by the program committee under the general chairmanship of Alva G. Maxwell. Winners of the golf tournament were awarded prizes at the dinner by Herbert Porter.

S. J. SMITH, JR., GIVEN PUBLIC SERVICE POST

Governor Hardman Tuesday announced the appointment of S. J. Smith, Jr., of Commerce, Ga., as special counsel for the Georgia public service commission to succeed W. E. Watkins, of Jackson, whose term has expired.

Mr. Smith is associated in the practice of law with his father, S. J. Smith. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia and has served as attorney for the Southern railway and other important companies. He is one of the best known lawyers of eastern Georgia and is popular throughout his section of the state. He will take up his duties immediately.

Mr. Watkins, who retired, was appointed to this post by Governor Clifford Walker. He has made an excellent record in the place. He will return to Jackson, where he maintains law offices.

The governor announced the appointment of J. T. Powell as solicitor of the city court of Glynn county to succeed Frank S. Scriver. He also announced the appointment of Thomas E. Miller as county solicitor of Lanier county to succeed himself.

Two new members were named by the governor for places on the board of trustees of Bowdon Normal and Industrial college. M. E. Howell, of Heard county was named to succeed Frank S. Loftin, of the same county. From Carroll county, John T. Hixon was appointed to succeed W. C. Adamson.

WOMEN VISIT GEORGIA POWER COMPANY PLANTS

More than 100 members of the women's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce were guests of the city committee of the Georgia Power company Monday afternoon on a tour of three of the principal Atlanta properties of the company.

The guests were taken first to the Boulevard sub-station and shown through the plant.

Luncheon was served the guests in the office of the load dispatcher and the guests were taken to the Fulton county plant, 33 Virginia avenue, where street cars are made, repaired, overhauled and painted.

The final stop was at the new Spring street sub-station, which is noiseless and automatic, and one of the first of its kind in the south.

The guests stopped at the Brass Kettle for dinner following the tour.

RADIO EXPOSITION PLANS UNDER WAY

Atlanta's third radio and electrical exposition was given an auspicious start Tuesday noon, when more than 50 members of the Electrical league and the Atlanta Radio Trades association gathered at the Ansley hotel for a get-together luncheon.

The meeting, called for the purpose of committee organization, was presided over by H. A. Pendergraph, general merchandise manager for Georgia Power company, who has been named general chairman of the 1927 exposition, which is to be held the week of October 17.

Following a short talk by Mr. Pendergraph, Foster B. Steward, managing director of the exposition, outlined a few of the plans formulated for this year's show and asked that members of both the Electrical league and the Radio Trades association extend the new general manager the same sort of cooperation that was extended last year.

Mr. Pendergraph also called upon W. H. Brimberry, vice president of the Capital Electric company, who served as general chairman of the 1926 exposition; Al E. Bailey, of Bailey & Co.; Lambdin Kay, director of radio for the Atlanta Journal, and R. A. Smith, of Western Electric company, president of the Atlanta Electrical league, for short talks.

Mr. Riley was accepted as spokesman for the league and stated that an attempt would be made this year to make the exposition a real electrical display so that the show would be rather than only a radio show.

Gas Masks Employed By Firemen To Combat Escaping Acid Fumes

Gas masks were used by firemen summoned Tuesday morning on an emergency call to the Essex Surgical Supply company, 58 Auburn avenue, where poisonous sulphuric acid fumes were escaping from a leaking barrel of the acid.

Officials of the company stated that the barrel was cracked when accidentally struck by workmen, moving a large scuttling. The firemen broke open the barrel to permit the acid to spread and then neutralized the chemical by dousing the floor with sodium bicarbonate solution. The prompt action of the firemen kept the loss to a minimum, store officials said.

All-Day Showers Temperature Drop Expected Today

All day showers, accompanied by decreasing temperatures, are headed toward Atlanta and north Georgia, according to the forecast for today, announced by officials of the local weather station.

Indication of the precipitation was given by the barometrical depression in the Gulf coast area, causing a move through southern Georgia toward Atlanta.

The mercury Tuesday started its daily cycle from the 72-degree mark and reached the level of 86 degrees before descending. The probable range scheduled for today is from 70 to 82 degrees.

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR RETURNS FOR SERMON

The Rev. Dunbar Ogden, of Mobile, former pastor of the Central Presbyterian church here, will preach Sunday night, August 21, at 7:45 o'clock at the community services held on the Capitol square by the various branches in the vicinity of the capital.

Dr. John E. White, former pastor of the Second Baptist church for many years, will be the speaker for Sunday night, August 28.

MERCHANTS' WEEK BUYING IS HEAVY

Heavy buying in all lines for fall and winter retail stocks was reported Tuesday on the part of visiting merchants attending the annual "merchants' week" sponsored here by the Merchants and Manufacturers' association. This report was made by headquarters of the event at the Henry Grady hotel, where several hundred visitors are registered.

The program swung into its second day Tuesday with a theater party at the Georgia theater featuring the entertainment bill. During the morning and afternoon the merchants visited local wholesale houses and inspected special displays arranged for "merchants' week."

The chief event of today will be a big barbecue at Lakewood park at 12:30 o'clock, at which Governor L. G. Hardman will be principal speaker. Thursday night will witness the staging of a dinner and cabaret at the Henry Grady hotel.

SEVERAL ROUTINE BILLS RETURNED BY GRAND JURY

The Fulton county grand jury returned a number of routine bills Tuesday at its regular meeting. Owing to the absence of the criminal courts judges from the courthouse Tuesday afternoon, the presentments were not made public, as one of the judges must receive the return of the grand jury before the results of the session can be announced.

REBEKAHS TO GIVE PICNIC AND DANCE

Georgia Rebekah No. 17, I. O. O. F., degree staff has arranged for a picnic, swimming party and dance to be given at Glencoe Springs, Stone Mountain-Tucker road, on Tuesday next. Dancing will start at 8:30 p. m., music to be furnished by one of the best orchestras in Atlanta. Ladies will be admitted free.

This being an invitation dance, cards may be secured from any member of the Rebekahs. Mrs. W. B. Cooley, Mrs. J. H. Freeman, Mrs. W. W. Bonfield, Mrs. A. J. Walker, Mrs. Eula Jett, Mrs. H. J. Bridgewater compose the committee in charge.

PANAMA AND HAWAII TRIPS FOR RECRUITS

The Fourth Corps Area announces that 265 recruits from Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina are soon to experience a sea trip and service in the tropical countries of Panama and Hawaii.

On August 15 the quota had been partially filled with 144 recruits still to be secured and sent to Fort Slocum, N. Y., and Fort Eustis, Va., to sail on government transports on September 8 and 9.

Of the 265, 100 sail from New York for Hawaii on September 8 and 165 sail from Norfolk, Va., for Panama on September 9.

Do you feel like going back to bed?

AFTER YOU have dressed your children, fed them, and sent them off to school, do you feel like going back to bed? Do you shrink from your daily task of dish-washing and house-cleaning? Are you tired? Discouraged?

Many women have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for that tired feeling. It builds up the appetite. It induces natural sleep. Read what these two women say about it.

GAINED 18 POUNDS

Cleveland, Ohio: "After having my first baby I lost weight no matter what I did. I went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble." Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Nelson Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

NERVOUS SPELLS GONE

St. Paul, Minn.: "I used to get nervous spells that would last a couple of days and were so bad that I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight. One day a little booklet was left on my porch and I read it through. I found a case similar to mine. I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have had fine results. Now housekeeping doesn't tire me." Mrs. Jack Lorberster, 704 Dellwood Place, St. Paul, Minnesota.

They Wouldn't Believe

By Roy Vickers.

On the way to Donald Briery's house for luncheon Connie Elmore, Donald's fiancée, tells her friend Olive Weston that Donald stands a chance of inheriting half a million from the estate of old Harrowby, a friend of Donald's father.

INSTALLMENT III.

THE CYNICAL LITTLE GROUP.

Olive's astuteness as a reporter had not eluded the news editor. When he was quite sure it was not beginner's luck he had offered her a regular position with a good salary. But Olive preferred her freedom and remained in newspaper parlance, "on space"—which meant that she had a desk at the office of the Daily Record and was free to come and go, to work or not, as she pleased.

Life at the little flat had run smoothly and happily. What it would be like when Connie was married, Olive had not yet dared to think.

"It will be terribly lonely, not only because I shall have lost Connie, but because I shall have lost the little—the very little—I had of Donald. He has never noticed it, but often I've helped him when he has been worried. . . . Connie will make Donald forget all his worries by just being herself—and that will help him. I would have helped—in other ways." She lifted her chin courageously. "I shall still help." Then came the thought: "But that twenty thousand a year—I shall never hold it all. My help will never be wanted."

"Olive! Donald has asked you twice to have some more! What are you so absorbed in?"

"Wondering whether I shall ever be able to afford a little car," retorted Olive promptly. "I shall forget how to drive if I don't get hold of one soon. No more, thanks, Donald, I feel a new woman already. My hat, I was hungry!"

"I've brought you down here and I don't know what on earth I'm going to do to entertain you," said Donald, when coffee had been partaken of. "I simply haven't the ghost of a notion how to play host."

"You promised to show us over the house," said Connie. "I want to see every nook and cranny, please."

"By jove, yes! Come on, Olive!"

For an unguarded moment, Olive's heart leapt. She too, had wanted to see every nook and cranny in Donald's home—once. But Donald must never know that.

"It's a lovely house, Donald, I'm sure, but I must have my cig after lunch. Dig me out of the garden when you're finished."

"You cynical little brute!" laughed Donald. "Please yourself. Do anything you like, always, as long as you don't teach Connie to smoke."

With a friendly nod he followed Connie from the room. Olive wandered out through the French windows into the garden, lit a cigarette and drew at it furiously so that she coughed and it was easy to believe that it was the smoke that had brought tears to her eyes.

She tried to fix her thoughts on the garden. She had an eye for gardens—and this was a garden one could love. A century old lawn, mercifully too small for tennis! It was large enough—O, large enough for a child to play hide-and-seek!

She sat on the gnarled roots of a chestnut tree—and dived again into the dark lake of her own thoughts.

"Cynical little brute," said laughing, affectionately. It was the laughing affection that hurt. She pleased him when she was cynical and pretended that she would rather smoke a cigarette than be taken over the house that was his home, see where he had played as a child, what dark corners had held terrors for him, where he had sat when the first dreams of romance had come to him.

"Damn this cigarette!" she exclaimed and flung it away in the belief that the smoke had again got into her eyes. It had been a cynical little brute, how easy it would have been to go on a tour of inspection with Donald.

Aunt Hel

"I don't mind hearin' nasty gossip about no-account people I know an' despise, but I get tired o' readin' that kind of stuff in ever' new book I buy."

Kitty McKay

Mabel says she hasn't had her picture taken since the days when the photographers' studios were equipped like dental parlors.

aid—and Connie. On such a tour a really cynical little brute would have enjoyed the humor of it—the humor of ever having imagined that one day Donald would take her over the house as he was now taking Connie and say to her, as he was now saying to Connie: "This we will make the spare room. This little one I thought of pinching for my dressing room. These two on the other side of the passage—well, I thought we might keep them in reserve."

It was a good thing those big, lithe men were always so blind where women were concerned. If Donald had not been so blind, she would have died of shame.

Their friendship had sprung into instant being during a fortnight's holiday at a seaside resort. It had been the briefest of friendships. Olive had known; looking back upon it, it seemed but a day. She had been almost too happy to sleep when Donald had asked if he might come to see her in London. He had never guessed anything. He had guessed so little that when, some three short months later, he himself had broken to her the news that Connie had accepted him, he had honestly believed that he had added the crown to their friendship.

She had gripped his hand, then, and played up to him with a gay laugh and a barred joke about marriage being the end of friendship. On the first occasion when they had all been together, it had been a twin nightmare. Donald should suspect—lest Connie herself should guess she had cut out her own best friend and her lover before he had had time to declare his love.

She would rather that Donald knew than that Connie knew. But neither of them must ever know.

After all, life still offered much. Each would always regard her as the most intimate friend. As soon as they had settled down they would ask her to stay. Thereafter, she would visit them regularly. She would become an institution in their lives. Sometimes, she supposed, they would have their lovers' quarrels—and she would loyally pretend to each that she had noticed nothing. . . . There would be times when she would be temporary mistress of the house—and in due course she would carry a new title.

"Auntie Olive," said Aunt Olive. "Auntie Olive," she said aloud. And they would have Connie's eyes and perhaps Donald's chin—and the boy would grow up like Donald.

She caught her breath in a sob then pulled herself up.

"Steady on, you sentimental idiot! For heaven's sake have the goodness to remember that you're a cynical little brute and one of these dreadful modern girls and a newspaper reporter." Thank you. That's better.

Her thoughts settled down. She lit another cigarette and this time smoked it to the end.

"Olive isn't really cynical, you know—she only pretends to be," Connie had said as she and Donald had left the room.

"She is—gloriously cynical," asserted Donald. "I don't mean spiteful or anything like that. But she is balanced—she has never been led away by her feelings. She's got a clearer brain than any man I've ever met."

"I wish she would get engaged, too," murmured Connie. "Wouldn't it be splendid?"

"I don't think she will," returned Donald, who was still young enough to generalize about women. "She is one of those women who are born with a genius for friendship. One feels at ease with her at once, anxious to talk things over and have her opinion on anything under the sun. She is the finest friend a man could have, but, perhaps just because of that, one can't imagine a man wanting to kiss her. She's charming, but she lacks charm—if that isn't nonsense."

Connie smiled wisely.

"You say that because you haven't felt the charm yourself," she teased. "If I were a man I would propose to Olive at once. . . . O, this is the stuff!"

"Yes, and I keep it as a study. I work in the room they used to call the morning room and keep all my litter of plans and things here, and see contractors and people. I never allow business acquaintance in this room. It's a part of the home."

Connie looked around the room, her eye taking in every detail and coming to rest on an oil painting, a portrait, that hung in the center of the back wall—the best position in the room.

New York, August 16.—(AP)—Continuation of showery weather in the south, accompanied by increasingly numerous reports of damage by insects and talk of boll weevil, appeared responsible for an advance of more than $3 a bale in the cotton market today. December contracts sold up to 19.10; the general market closing firm at net advances of 44 to 67 points. The market opened firm at a little advance of 25 to 33 points on a continuation of yesterday's buying movement, evidently stimulated by relatively firm Liverpool cables. Confident realization and possibly some scattered selling for a reaction were absorbed on setbacks of 15 to 20 points from the best and the market showed a generally firm undertone since the first of the month, with the reiterated reports of increasing insect activity, appeared to have a dampening effect, and the advance was probably accelerated to some extent by a private crop report making the condition 66.8 and the indicated yield 13.55,000 bales.

Prices reached the highest level of the day in late trading, October selling at 19.10 and March at 20.27, net advances of about 54 to 58 points on active positions and more than a cent a pound from the closing quotations last Saturday. There was a little realization in late trading and perhaps a little southern selling, but last prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best on active positions.

Reports of damage by boll weevil and other insects reached here from almost all parts of the south during the day, and some buying was reported on a theory that any allowance made for deterioration in crop prospects in the government's crop indications as of August 1, was likely to be realized.

Private cables reported continental buying with easing and rebuying by recent sellers in the Liverpool market.

The preliminary figures of the census bureau on the carryover in this country indicated about in line with expectations.

Export today 22,808, making 140,124 so far this year. Port receipts today 30,027. U. S. port receipts 948,824.

NEW ORLEANS HAS $2.30 BALE INCREASE.
New Orleans, August 16.—(AP)—The cotton market today today to a very positive report from Texas of crop deterioration and a rather unfavorable weather forecast. October traded at 19.10, 54 points net up, and closed at 19.55, with the general market ket closing steady at a net advance of 50 to 51 points.

The opening was firm due to strong Liverpool advances. First trades showed gains of 18 to 23 points. Prices continued to advance all morning with few minor reactions until near mid-session October had traded to 19.57 and December to 19.54, 52 to 53 points above yesterday's close.

Profit-taking in the early afternoon caused a reaction of 18 to 20 points, with October dropping to 19.37, and December 19.36, but a revival of anxiety over the Texas crop brought on a sharp rally in the late trading and all morning made new highs with October at 19.58 and December 19.57, 54 to 55 points net up. The market eased off 3 to 4 points at the end on realizing, but closed at an advance of 15 to 16 points.

A private authority issued a mid-month report today making the condition of the crop 66.8 and the indicated yield 13,500,000 bales. The report had no effect on the market. Exports for the day totaled 12,300 bales.

Warden Won't Take Recaptured Convict Back

"NOT ON A BET," SAYS WARDEN GOODROE

Harry Tolbert, who is doing a life term for the murder of a woman, sitting in the prison at 195 Ivy street as happy as a child, was told by the warden, W. J. Goodroe, that he would not take him back to the prison after he had been released on parole.

The story of how Harry Tolbert lost the good will of the warden of the prison at 195 Ivy street, and how the warden would not take him back to the prison after he had been released on parole, is a story that has been told in the past.

Tuesday morning Deputy Sheriff Jim White received a mysterious tip that if he wanted Harry Tolbert he could find him at 195 Ivy street.

producers in their fight to recover coal markets in the northwest was seen today by local operators with the announcement that the interstate commerce commission had ordered southern carriers to suspend until next spring a new schedule of rates providing for a 20 cents per ton reduction on lake cargo coal shipments from their territory.

Coal operators and prominent business leaders expressed the opinion that the commission's order "presaged a complete and final victory" for the Pittsburgh district when hearings are conducted by the commission.

"It is a real victory for Pittsburgh," said Thomas A. Dunn, chairman of the general traffic committee of the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce.

"It carries out the commission's order of last May which reduced our lake cargo coal rates 20 cents a ton, effective August 10. It also must certainly mean that the interstate commerce commission is not going to allow the operators to benefit in the future by unjust and discriminatory rates such as have in the past eight or ten years robbed Pittsburgh and other nearby cities of their rightful share of the 30,000,000 tonnage coal business that is involved annually."

"I firmly believe the present rate will be maintained by the commission. This means the restoration to Pittsburgh of between $500,000,000 and $800,000,000 of business to which we have a just claim."

KEITH'S GEORGIA.

Dan Fitch and his famous Minstrel Men are holding forth at Keith's Georgia this week with a stage show which is the equal of any previous offering presented locally by Fitch and his minstrels. In some respects the offering has advanced beyond the old stage organization and the acts and various specialties are presented in attractive stage settings. On the screen Hobart Bosworth in "The Blood Ship" is featured and is one of the best films shown at this theater during the season.

Capitol.

The saying is that nobody loves a fat man. It might be equally well said that the whole world loves a fat girl. If you don't believe this, go to the Capitol theater this week and watch the way the camera worships Hazel Green, who hasn't been dieting and looks and acts just like she gets more fun out of life than she is in. Miss Green heads a big revue of singers, dancers, musicians. And she does most of the singing, some of the playing and as an exponent of the Black Bottom, she sets the audience wild.

Loew's Grand.

Two marvelous dancers, Braila and Pello, leading music hall artists of Europe assisted by the Yugo-Slav Royal orchestra and Mel Elwood, form the headline attraction on a pleasing bill of vaudeville at Loew's Grand theater this week. The dancers are easily top notches in their class and offer a wonderful program. Other stars actors on the bill are Page and Shaw; Browning and Bracken; Bert Grant; and Tibbels. The Low feature picture is "The Understanding Heart," based on Peter B. Kyne's novel with Joan Crawford.

Howard.

Ether Ralston is the blonde star of "Ten Modern Commandments" the Paramount picture now playing at the Howard theater. It is here that she has no aspirations to follow in her parents' footsteps as a performer. Instead she lives with her aunt who runs a theatrical boarding house. It is here that she meets Neil Hamilton, a struggling song composer. Borrah Minevitch enters as "Boydhood Days" and his harmonica funsters prove to be a real treat. Al Short with his overture, "Musical Contrasts," is causing no end of comments.

Metropolitan.

How New York entertains itself between the exit marches of the theaters and parade of milk wagons in the early morning is revealed in "Broadway Nights," starring Lois Wilson and Sam Hardy, at the Metropolitan theater this week. The synopsized harpist "Chicago" appears on the stage. Hal Roach comedy and the Metropolitan News and Views are other features.

Rialto.

"Stark Love," a film without a movie actor actress in it, is at the Rialto theater this week, along with the ninth episode of "The Wise-crackers," a chapter called "The Better Role." "Stark Love" pictures the tragedy which results when a bill boy returns from his "schooling" to find his father about to claim and marry "his girl." A battle to the death for her results, and one of the finest melodramatic scenes in the history of motion pictures is secured. The featured players are Helen Mundy and Forrest James.

Ponce de Leon.

Reginald Denny, one of the best-known and most popular of the screen's light comedians, will cavort about in "Rolling Home," one of his comedy scenes which is being shown for the first time only at the Ponce de Leon theater. In "Rolling Home," Denny has been provided with a vehicle that quite upholds its very high record in the past. He is supported by an able cast.

West End.

Another wonderful action picture with Thunder, the marvel dog, will feature in "His Master's Voice," which will be shown at West End this afternoon and tonight for the last time. In addition to the wonderful canine action there is Mary Carr and George Hackathorne at the head of a list of capable stars. "Rough House Rides" will be shown Thursday and Friday.

Palace.

With an interesting love story woven around the happenings on and off a race track, "King of Turf" with Kenneth Harlan and Patsy Ruth Miller in the leading roles, will be shown at the Palace theater today. It is said to be one of the greatest race track stories ever pictured. Anita Stewart in "Whispering Wires" will be shown Thursday and Friday.

Tenth Street.

"Blind Alley," with Thomas Meighan in the foreground, will be shown for the last time today at Tenth Street theater. It is a story where a young married couple become separated during their honeymoon. "Slide, Kelly, Slide," a wonderful baseball action picture, will be shown Thursday and Friday.

East Atlanta.

Rin-Tin-Tin, wonder dog actor of the screen, departs from the usual type of dog stories in "While London Sleeps" which is showing for today only at the new Madison theater in East Atlanta. "While London Sleeps" has been acclaimed as the most popular of the many films that this canine star has made, and in it Rinty appears as the dog of a world-famous crook and he finally brings that crook to justice.

Fairfax.

In "The Last Trail" Tom Mix, with his assistant, Tony, is up to par in a fast moving western. Tony never fails to get his master and hero out of his direful predicaments and may rightfully claim the possession of the highest degree of horse sense.

DeKalb.

Norma Shearer, one of the most beautiful stars of screenland, will take the leading role in "The Waning Sex," which will be shown at the new DeKalb theater today and tonight. It is one of her best pictures and has for its theme a wonderful love story. Clara Bow will head the list of stars in "The Waning Sex" for Thursday and Friday.

Short Puts Over

'Classical Jazz'

Idea at Howard

Al Short, capable bandmaster and chief musician at the Howard theater, is presenting this week an overture entitled "Musical Contrasts" in which he plays a number of classics and follows each with a synopsized version of the number.

He is scoring perhaps the largest success of his career by a musical offering occupying the overture position in a local theater, and music-lovers who do not care for the cinema will find a great deal of pleasure in the theater, which incidentally has a very nice program, including "Ten Modern Commandments" on the screen and Borrah Minevitch and his harmonica hand on the stage.

Mr. Short and the orchestra, unlike previous weeks, are seen only in the pit, but with saxophones and other instruments which are not regularly used in a concert orchestra.

The orchestra plays a selection from "Pagliacci" first and following with a synopsized of that number comes "Humoresque" and its modern "jazzed-up" rendition. The closing number is a concert of regular and popular songs, including "Tannhauser" and for the finale, spotlights are thrown on the two big boys at the side of the auditorium which contain in each a herald trumpet and a trombone, and with the organ joining in on the final chords, it produces a most striking effect on the auditors.

Georgia Regiment

Holds Maneuvers

Anniston, Ala., August 16.—(Special.)—With the second week's program well under way, the 122d Infantry is vigorously attacking maneuver problems under the watchful eyes of a corps of regular army instructors, headed by Colonel J. M. Kimbrough. Today's problem took up the entire morning. Major G. P. O'Keefe was in command of the war strength battalion, for which the regiment has been converted during maneuvers and the schedule went off perfectly.

Colonel Major, chief of staff, a visitor to camp today and manifested marked interest in the day's problem. He took occasion to compliment Colonel Cox on the regiment's first showing and expressed gratification over the manner in which the unit went into the strenuous schedule.

At noon the difficulty of the morning program, a critique was held at which Colonel Kimbrough pointed out and explained various moves and gave reasons therefor. Later Captain Burk took a blackboard and skul lesson and lectured for twenty minutes and gave out the problem for Wednesday which places the regiment in the act of attacking a foe on Blue Mountain, near the camp site.

Tuesday afternoon was used in going over Wednesday's problem and in preliminary plans with a regimental parade at 4 o'clock.

After parade every afternoon the men are permitted to engage in sports of various kinds and may go into Anniston for showers or for dinner. The strenuous training schedule, however, serves to keep the men well in camp as most of them are downright tired long before nightfall.

Alumni and students of Emory university who are members of the Georgia regiment have been granted permission by Colonel Cox to have a dinner and get together meeting Wednesday night at the Alabama hotel in Anniston, and more than two score men have made reservations with Lieutenant Hankinson, of company H, who is head of a committee in charge of arrangements.

So far as known the annual Gate City Camp made up of a group of 122d infantry members, will not be held this year. This is the first year that the regiment has been organized that the famous old guard did not have at least one dinner and dance during the encampment. The intensiveness of the 1937 program of training, however, has made it doubly difficult to engage in many social features of the annual camp. Colonel Cox stating some weeks before the camp that because of the facilities of Camp McClellan it was desired the regiment take full advantage of them.

Program of the first week included eight hours of active duty while this week's program is slightly lighter.

DIAMOND RUSH

(Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Cape Town, South Africa, August 16.—Five thousand people of all ages took part in the diamond rush at Welverdiend, 14 miles from Lichtenburg, this afternoon. Welverdiend is supposed to be the richest farm district in the territory.

Many South African champions joined the mad race. They were closely followed by 13 women runners. Universal students of both sexes, most of the men clad in running shorts or bathing costumes, lined up for the starter's signal. Prior to the proclamation the police arrested

BRAXTON COMER BORNE TO GRAVE

Birmingham, Ala., August 16.—(AP)—The body of Braxton Braxton Comer, former governor of Alabama, who died at his residence here yesterday after an illness of more than a month, was laid to rest in Elmwood cemetery here today. More than 2,000 friends paid final tribute to the dead industrial chief and civic and religious leader.

Funeral services were conducted at the residence by the Rev. Dr. W. R. Hendrix, pastor of Highlands Methodist church, and the Rev. Dr. Raleigh Green, assistant pastor of the First Methodist church.

Among those at the funeral were Governor and Mrs. Graves and other leaders in state and industrial affairs. Hundreds of telegrams and letters of condolence were received by the family today, coming from all parts of the nation and from countless Alabama cities and hamlets.

The Alabama legislature and the Mobile city commission passed resolutions extending sympathy to the family.

Comer's induction into the governorship was accompanied with brilliant military and civil ceremonies, the most elaborate and impressive since the death of the late Governor Jeff Davis was inaugurated on the same spot as president of the Confederate States.

Through his own experience as merchant, planter, shipper and manufacturer, Governor Comer early realized the need for removal of railroad legislation and recommended that the Alabama railroad commission be given adequate power to make investigations concerning the rules of railroads, their charges and methods of doing business, to restrict charges and establish rules that would be fair to railroads and the patrons alike.

During his administration a child labor law was passed which forbade employment of children under 12 years of age. He also sponsored a compulsory education law requiring children under 16 years of age to attend school at least eight consecutive weeks during the school term.

Welfare work among the cotton mill workers of the state occupied no small part of his time. The mill communities of Mignon and Sylacauga with community recreation halls, swimming pools, football, baseball and basketball teams, concert bands and well lighted streets are considered models among southern cotton towns.

OFF-KEY RADIO STATIONS MAKE PEACE WITH U. S.

Washington, August 16.—(AP)—Radio broadcast stations which have been in danger of losing their licenses by reason of failure to stay on prescribed wave lengths were successful today in making peace with the federal radio commission.

Chairman Bullard, who declared yesterday that stations which failed to publish, have since June 15 refused to keep on the wave length which the commission assigned, were given a date for a 60-day trial period. Their operators, in most cases, declared that the failure was entirely due to errors or the difficulty in tuning their transmitters to the proper scale.

The endangered stations, the names of which the commission has refused to publish, have since June 15 refused to keep on the wave length which the commission assigned, were given a date for a 60-day trial period. Their operators, in most cases, declared that the failure was entirely due to errors or the difficulty in tuning their transmitters to the proper scale.
